SOUTH'S HOSPITALITY.

THE PAN-AMERICANS CALLED BACK

the Southern People Unwilling to Entertain the Lackeys of the Delegates, Complain and the Tour is Abandoned.

WASHINGTON, April 21 .- [Special.]-The great three-ringed Pan-American menagerie, which started out a few days ago to hippofrome the south, has fizzled out. Indeed, its first southern performance was only given in one ring, without sawdust, and only two curiosities were on exhibition. The peanut and lemonade venders and cage cleaners were decorated, but the people of the south caught on to the fraud and refused point blank to have such a show in their town. Indeed, there are only two delegates and about thirty clerks and private secretaries in the party. The people of the cities they have visited ob ted, and raised auch a howl over the fraud jected, and raised auch a new or that Mr. Blaine tonight recalled the junketers. They will return tomorrow. E. The Excursion Stopped Short.

WASHINGTON, April 21.-The secretary state this morning telegraphed Captain Bourke, in charge of the special train that was carrying the Pan-Americans on their southern tour, to return to Washington from from Richmond. This was done because so few of the delegates desired to make the ex-

ALL RENDERED EXCUSES.

Thirteen of the foreign delegates accepted the invitation, but only two of them-Martinez Silva, of Columbia, and Zegarra, of Peru,-left Washington with the party. The others sent letters of regret, giving various reasons for withdrawing their acceptance. Some were detained by important business; some were called to New York by telegraph others had decided to start at once for their homes, and the rest were ill or too tired to make the journey.

Several promised to join the excursion at Richmond today, but were unable to do so, and the secretary of state decided that the number of those going would not justify the expense of the journey, which would cost as much as if the entire conference had gone. much as if the entire conference had gone. The whole outlay would probably have been

SECRETARY BLAINE REGRETS IT.

The secretary said tonight that he sincerely regretted that the commercial organization and citizens of the south who had made preparations to entertain the delegates had to be disappointed, but felt that they would appre ciate the circumstances which compelled the abandonment of the excursion. The foreign delegates have now been in this country for seven months, and some of them even longer, and are anxious to return to their homes as soon as possible. They are grateful for the bospitality extended them, and very much regret that they cannot accept it.

gret that they cannot accept it.

THE EXCURSIONISTS IN RICHMOND.
RICHMOND, Va., April 21.—The Pan-Americal delegates were shown around the city today. Upon their return to the hotel they found a dispatch recalling them to Washington, the southern tour having been abandoned. Some of the excursionists will continue their trip south, New Orleans being the objective point. The government has ordered that a Pullman can be attached to the regular train for their convenience.

for their convenience.

The Pan-American train left here for Washington at 10:10 tonight. Several of the party remained over and will leave for a southern trip tomorrow on their own account.

A STATUE OF COLUMBUS.

The Senate Passes the World's Fair Bill With

Committee Amendments. Washington, April 21.—Senator Plumb introduced a concurrent resolution directing the secretary of the treasury to increase the the secretary of the treasury to increase the treasury purchase and coinage of silver buillon to the maximum amount authorized by the act of February 28, 1878, and gave notice that he would ask for its consideration tomorrow.

On motion of Mr. Hawley, the senate proceeded to consider the house bill to provide for celebrating the four hundreth anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, by holding an international exhibition of arts, industries, manufactures and product of soil, mine and sea, in the city of Chicago, in the state of Illinois.

The only amendment reported by the senate

The only amendment reported by the senate committee is the insertion of a new section providing for a naval review in New York harbor in April, 1803, and for the unveiling of the statue of Christopher Columbus at Washington.

on!
Mr. Hale inquired of Mr. Hawley whether twas intended that the government should larnish the statue of Columbus.
Mr. Hawley replied in the affirmative, and stated that a bill for that purpose had already passed the senate, and was now pending in the house.

Mr. Vest said that it seemed to be assumed

Mr. Vest said that it seemed to be assumed that because the house had passed the bill the senate was under some coercion to pass it. He protested against such an assumption. The bill would probably pass the senate by an overwhelming majority, but no measure should ever pass the senate with his vote on the assumption that the judgment of the house was coercive on the senate. He knew that his opposition to the bill would be ascribed to the fact that the city of St. Louis had been an aspirant as the site for the World's fair. That was a post-mortem proceeding and he did not propose to introduce ghosts to disturb the equananimity of the senators or the tranquility of the city of Chicago.

equinanimity of the senators or the tranquility of the city of Chicago.

Mr. Vest continued in a humerons vein and turked to ridicule the idea of holding any fair at all at such short notice and following so soon after the Paris exposition. He likened the method of choosing a site for the fair to an "auction," and said it was only an "advertising scheme," compared Chicago to hades, between which place and Chicago there was not much choice, read some verses from a parody on "Excelsior," of which verses from a parody on "Excelsior," of which refrain was "Chicago," and which created much amusement and concluded by declaring that the bill was a sensational measure, got up in light of the conflict and rivalry between municipalities.

Mr. Cullom attributed Mr. Vest's speech to a species of hydrophobia superinduced by mention of the name of "Chicago."

Mr. Hoar moved to amend by striking out the provision as to the Columbus statue. This proposition, after another long debate, was agreed to, and the remainder of the senate committee amendment (for a naval review) was agreed to.

The section, as adopted, reads:

ection, as adopted, reads: 8. That the president is hereby empowered and directed to hold a naval review in New York harbor, in April, 1893, and to extend to foreign nations an invitation to send ships of war to join the United States navy in rendezvous at Hampton Roads and proceed thence to said review.

Mr. Blair moved to add to the first section a provision that no intoxicating liquors, wines or beer shall be sold to be used as a beverage within the limits of the exposition grounds, and made a short speech in support of it.

Mr. Butler thought that that was a matter which might safely be left to the people of Chicago; and, therefore, he moved to lay the amendment on the table.

The bill, which had been under consideration in committee of the whole, was then reported to the senate and a vote was again Mr. Blair moved to add to the first section a

LAWS FOR OKLAHOMA.

The House Adopts the Conference Report-A New Pension 1991.
Washington, April 21.—In the house Mr. port on the bill to provide a temporary government for the territory of Oklahoma. The ernment for the territory of Oklahoma. The bill, as agreed upon, changes the boundaries of the proposed territory of Oklahoma, so far as to exclude from territo-rial limits what is known as the Cherokee outlet. It is provided, however, that as soon as the Indian claim to this outlet that as soon as the Indian claim to this outlet is extinguished it shall become part of the territory of Oklahoma, without further legislation, and that the lands therein shall be opened to settlement as other lands in said territory. It is also provided that jurisdiction to enforce the laws of the United States in the Cherokee outlet shall be conferred upon the supreme and district courts of the territory of Oklahoma. The reading of the report occupied one hour and a half. After a brief discussion and but little opposition the report was pied one hour and a half. After a brief dis-cusion and but little opposition the report was adopted.

The bill appropriating $333,500, to provide the necessary vaults and safeguards for the security of public money in the custody of the United States treasury, was passed.

The speaker then called the committees in order for a motion to suspend the rules and pass measures on the calendar.

Mr. Morrill, of Kansas, from the committee on invalid pensions, called up the bill to pen-sion prisoners of war.

on invalid pensions, cared up the bill to pen-sion prisoners of war.

Mr. Tarsney, of Missouri, opposed the bill.

He had entered the army at the age of seven-teen years, had been stricken down wounded at Gettysburg and had lain for months in Conteen years, had been stricken down wounded at Gettysburg and had lain for months in Confederate prisons on Belle 13le and Andersonville, but he nevertheless declared that this bill was a most victous proposition. It drew no line between the mexterious and unmeritorious soldier, or rather it discriminated against brave and more deserving soldiers who fought for their confurry and in favor of those who were picked up as stragglers. The bill was an inducement to the soldiers to surrender. It told the soldiers to surrender, to get safely into an enemy's prison and after the war receive his reward. All men in uniform were not soldiers; all of the prisoners were not there through zeal. Many, a large proportion, were put in prison because they were captured after leaving their commands or while evading their duty.

Mr. Cummings, of New York, said that if a bill could be drawn which would give to deserving prisoners of war alone a special pension, he would favor it. But this bill took in malingerer as well as soldier. Many a man became a prisoner to escape a fight, because he feit that he was safer in prison than alongsade his comrade in arms. He gave as illustrations, the conduct of a number of soldiers at Banks' ford, and of a soldier who had become a prisoner of war to escape punishment for striking his superior officer. The bill would not wash with veterans or with tax payers.

Mr. Honkins, of Illinois, defended the bill.

Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois, defended the bill. It was not so sweeping as had been represented. It limited beneficiaries to those who suffered from disability resulting from confinement. It from disability resulting from confinement. It was the duty of the government to care for such men. There might be individual instances, such as were held up here, but prisoners of war, as a whole, were a deserving class of men.

Messrs. Boothman, of Ohio; Cutcheon, of Michigan; Kennedy, of Ohio; Morse, of Massachusetts, advocated the passage of the bill, the latter maintaining that men imprisoned at Andersonville and such hells on earth, suffered more than those in the rauks.

The motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill was then put and defeated—yeas 143, nays 78; not the necessary two-thirds.

Mr. McKinley passented the conference report on the bill to regulate the sittings of the United States courts in the district of South Carolina. The house receded from its disagreement to the senate amendment.

The report was adopted, and the house at 5:10 o'clock, adjourned.

In default of this, confiscation is threatened.

The Silver Question. The Silver Question.

Washington, April 21.—Hepublican members of the house held a cancus tonight to receive the report of its committee on the silver question. Every one expected a lively time, and the expectation was realized. The discussion ran on until half-past 11 o'clock, when finally the entire subject was recommitted to the cancus committee. It became evident from several votes on the minority propositions taken during the debate that the republican members were opposed to the Windom bill in the proportion of two to one.

THE ARGUMENT BEGINS IN THE TRIAL OF DR. J. B. S. HOLMES AT ROME,

AND ELOQUENT SPEECHES MADE

The Argument of a High Order, Going Into the Marrow of the Case—Judge Branham and Colonel Hammond To-Day.

ROME, Ga., April 2I.—[Special.] -Argument in the Holmes trial was opened 'this morning for the state by Colonel J. I. Wright, who read the law of homicide and murder, and also read the law of homicide and murder, and also numerous extracts from different authorities to support his side of the case. His speech was clear, logical and, as is always the case with him in criminal cases, very impressive. He was on his feet for an hour and a half, and was followed by 'Seaborn Wright in a speech of two hours and a quarter.

SKABORN WRIGHT'S SPRECH.

His speech was a very fine one, full of pathos, humor, and at times rose to genuine oratory. He was listened to for the whole time he was on his feet with the closest attention. He paid Mr. Algood a glowing tribute, and bemoaned the fact of his untimely end. Not a word was said against Mr. Algood's name that could have offended his most ardent admirers. His illustrations of Dr. Holmes's character, by an incident in his own family, was very felicitous. His little boy had seen was very fenctions. Its little boy had seen the snow we had in eighty-six, and remarked upon its whiteness. Some one at night had smoked the window glass, and the little fellow said, "Papa the snow is all black." I wised the smoke off the glass and the little fellow was rejoiced to find the snow all white again, the smoke on the glass being represented by the shadow cast by the trial.

JUDGE BRANHAM'S COMPLIMENT. Judge Branham paid him the compliment of offering to close the defense with that speech, and forego his argument if the state would waive further speaking on their side except Judge Hammond's, Judge Branham being willing to risk his case as presented to the jury by Mr. Wright. Mr. Wright was fellowed by Colonel Debney, also for the defense, in a close legal argument of threequarters of an hour. It was noticed that Judge Maddox used his pencil very frequently, taking notes of law points while Colonel Dabney was speaking.

Hon. L. A. Dean closed for the day for the state in a strong speech of two hours, demonstrating that the issue was Algood's intention of a peaceful settlement, and showing this intention by his position when shot, and that Holmes was controlled by fear, which would not justify him in the eye of the law.
THE SPEAKING FOR TODAY.

Judge Branham will open in the morning and will be followed by Judge Hammond. Great speeches are expected from both of them. A great many ladies were in attendance today, and the courthouse was packed.

A BAR ROOM FIGHT

As a Result of Which Several Men are Likely to Die.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 21.—[Special.]—
News was received here today of a desperate shooting affair in a bar room in Mitchell county, near the Tennessee line. The county voted for prohibifion by a large majority, yet liquor is sold, the barkeepers taking out a government license. This bar room—a vile place, whose frequenters are the rough characters in that wild and lawless section—is owned by David Oaks and his nephew, Hamilton Oaks. These quarrelled about a division of the profits. Several men, all drinking, were in the bar room, which is only ten feet square.

A fight began, in which the owners of the places and William Bass participated. The places and William bass participated. The light was shot out and the wretched cabin was soon full of pistol smoke. When the fight ended, Ham Oaks was dying from wounds through the lungs and shoulders. David Oaks was found to be shot through the hips and will resolubly die, while Bass was stabbed in the abdomen, and his injuries are considered critical.

Children Burned to Death.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 21.—[Special.]— Thomas Bradley and his wife, living eight miles from this city, locked their two children, one a boy seven years old, and the other a girl somewhat younger, in the house, and went off to a prayer meeting in the vicinity. About 10 o'clock people living near saw a bright light, and smoke rising in the direction of the house, and soon there was a crowd on the scene, bu the building was nearly consumed, and nothing could be done to extinguish the flames. When the fire had nearly spent its force, the horrible discovery was made that the two little children had literally been roasted alive, and only their charred remains were found.

EATONTON, Ga., April 21.—[Special.]—In consequence of the new Rome road and other active enterprises now going on in Eatonton, real estate is on a boom and building lots are selling rapidly. Lots on the new street now being opened on the opposite side of the rall-road are being sold every day at good prices. J. R. Sparks, who owns a number of beautiful building sites in the upper part of the city, has sold within the last few days several lots upon which handsome residences will be erected at once. Contracts for several of them have already been closed. There is not a vacant house in Eatontou, and building lots are hard to obtain except on this street.

Parnell and the Land Purchase Bill.

Parnell and the Land Purchase Bill.

LONDON, April 21.—In the House of Commons today Mr. Parnell moved that the Irish land purchase bill be rejected by the house. Speaking in support of his motion he said that the measure justified the claims the mationalists made nine years ago. He welcomed Balfour as the latest recruit to the ranks of land reformers. While accepting the government's recognition of the principle of land for the people, Mr. Parnell declared that he could not admit that the bill was a satisfactory solution of the land question.

The University Surveying Corps.

Elberton, Ga., April 20.—[Special.]—A surveying corps, composed of students of the university of Georgia, are in Elberton to commence the survey of the Washington and Elberton railroad. They will begin the survey at once. The feeling on the whisky question seems to be on the increase in Elberton. It was the basis of sermons in the churches yesterday, and there seems to be a fixed and unalterable determination on the part of a large number of our citizens to put a stop to the traffic, or at least to exhaust all the means in their power to do so.

The Democrats Check a Republican Scheme

Drawing the Line on Appropriation Bills

General Topics Around the Capitol.

Washington, April 21—[Special.]—Judge Crisp, of Georgia, is to succeed Mr. Randall on the committee on rules. At least that is the rumor around the house

Mr. Randall and Mr. Carlisle were the democratic members. It is the leading committee of the house. From it the speaker of a suc-coeding house is almost invariably chosen.

Naturally, every one of the leading mem-bers of the house would like to serve on it. However, the ablest men and best parliamentarians are invariably selected, men who are leaders on one or the other side. Speaker Reed recognizes Judge Crisp as the man from the democratic side for the position. He so stated today, but there is some opposition, growing out of jealousy of the dis-tinguished Georgian, which might delay the appointment. However, it is quite certain to be in a few days. An appointment will put Judge Crisp in direct line for the speakership of the next democratic house. Baby M'KEE's GRANDPA.

Baby McKee's grandpa has decided to call a halt on appropriations, and the public building bills are to suffer. He today sent a message to the house and senate to make a list of all pending public building bills and report to him. It is his idea to vete all that are not strictly meritorions. Cannon and other reformers in the house have been to him and stated that he must stop the reckless extravagance that is going on, that it cannot be stopped in congress, consequently President Harrison is going to chil s halt on the bills when they reach the white house by operating with the veto pen, which Mr. Cleveland left on the office desk.

A REPUBLICAN SCHEME PRUSTRATED. A strewd republican scheme was balked by the democrats in the house this afternoon. The Oklahoma bill had been up all day, and the democratic members who were not inter-ested dropped out one by one, until only a few remained. When this bill was disposed of, late this afternoon, the republicans congre-gated in the house in large numbers, and attempted to pass, under suspension of the rules, a ten-million-dollar pension steal, a scheme to use the surplus to make votes. It was in the shape of a prison pension bill, a bill to pay every union soldier two dollars a day for every day he spent in a confederate prison. There are thirty thousand of them, and they spent an average of one hundred and seventy-five days each in prison. The bill was sprung upon the democrats without notice, and only twenty minutes on a side was allowed for debate. Mr. Tarsney, of Missouri, and Mr. Amos Cummings, of New York; opposed the bill vigorously, while the demo-cratic leaders sent rumors out to bring in abptees. Mr. Cummings said the bill offered a premium on cowardice, and in future wars it would have a bad effect. He then cited incidents under his own observation where men had preferred capture and imprisonment to heing at the front. Mr. Kennedy, of Ohio, as read, made an ass of himself by reading a letter which is said to be a forgery, depicting the alleged horrors of Andersonville. He then said that any soldier would rather have been killed than to have been sent to that hell on earth. As usual, he made a blackguard speech, which even his own colleagues would not applaud. "Stove Polish" Morse, of Massachusetts, returned from a Woman's Christian Temperance union meeting, in his maiden effort spoke in favor of the bill on the line of Kennedy's ravings. Then the vote was taken. The short delay for debate gave the democrats time to muster their forces, the republicans could not get tog necessary two-thirds vote to suspend the rules. The vote stood 143 to 78, and thus another burglarious attack upon the treasury for campaign money was nipped in the bud

Colonel J. Rice Smith, of Augusta, spent Saturday and Sunday here. All that human efforts could do had been done and at last the solemn cry went up all along the line, "Give up , we are gone;" and then the confusion of the people can be better imagined than described. Every impromptu boat and raft was brought into requisition; lanterns could be seen everywhere, and the cries of men, women and children attempting to save their effects was appalling. Not a house in town has escaped. The beautiful Fischer building, the home of Mayor Irvine, supposed to be the highest, is deluged. Our town is ruined. Nothing but chace and destruction meets the eye at every view.

Crops—Great Destitution.

Washington, April 21.—Secretary Proctor has transmitted to the house the report of Quartermaster-General Robinson in regard to the condition of affairs in the overflowed district of St. James and Ascension parishes, Louisiana. General Robinson says that, in pursuance to orders, he went to White Hall and Convent, St. James parish. Convent is at the lower edge of the great Nita crevasse. White Hall, above it, is further back in the valley. Below, at Convent, except near the levees, everything is flooded for about ten miles down. He says the situation is depletable, and hundreds of planters have lost their crops, while thousands of laborers will soon be thrown out of employment. At Grande Point, where there were probably sixty to eighty families, the people escaped in skiffs, and the whole precinct is under water. Opposite the levee break at Nita, numerous poor whites and colored people lost all but their lives. He recommends instant action tending to the rollef of the sufferers by the United States. The funeral services were held this afternoon at half past 3 o'clock. His friends don't think that he committed suicide, but believe that he was sick and took morphine to relieve the pain, and unfortunately took too much. He has been in ill health for some time. His firm, M. Nussbaum & Co., say he had no cause to commit suicide. They say he is straight in his accounts with them, and didn't drink. He leaves a wife and five children who will have nothing but the insurance, towit, $3,000 in Boyal Arcanum, $1,000 in Briah. B'rith, and $5,000 on accident policy. Whether or not they will get the accident policy remains to be seen. It is thought by Levy's friends that the family should receive the money, as he is supposed to have died from an accidental overdose of the poison.

JACKSON'S BAGGING.

COTTON STALKS YIELD THE ROYAL

GROWN ON SOUTHERN FIELDS.

Which Will Onst Jute From the Market for all Purposes A Wonderful and Timely Discovery. Augusta, Ga., April 21.-[Special.]-Mr.

William E. Jackson, a young lawyer of this city, today finds himself the center of the gaze of every cotton planter in the union. He has solved the jute hagging problem that has been a sore contention with the southern planter.

Mr. Jackson will furnish a covering for cotton made from the extra right. hir. Jackson will turned made from the cotton stalk, thus verifying the prediction of Edward Atkinson that every part of the cotton plant would be used. The part of the cotton plant would be used. The cotton planters have been so bitter against the jute bagging trust, that they have been sending their cotton to market covered with burlaps and sheeting at a net loss of about a dollar a bale

The saving made.

Today the alliance men are jubilant. By the making of bagging of the cotton stalk it is estimated that about three million dollars are put in the planters' pockets, and the gross savings to the country are about three million dollars. The stalks have been a nuisance in the field, and much labor is required to remove them. Now the planter will receive about two dollars and a half per ton for them delivered at the depots. The annual cotton cross livered at the depots. The annual cotton crop produces stalks enough to bale three years

MR. JACKSON'S WORK Mr Jackson has been working for months with the idea of discovering a fibre that for bagging would compete with the jute article.
This, by treatment in his machine, he discovered most appropriately in the stalk of the cot-ton plant. The stalk is cut and housed when mature. It is run through corrugated rollers under heavy pressure, with an eccentric at-tachment. Water is all the while carrying of the foul residue of gum, pulp and skin. ing machines then prepare the yarn for the weaving machine, and Mr. Jackson, keeping his labors a secret, worked until he had a sufficient quantity and then went north to experiment on the looms at the jute bagging factory of J. C. Todd, in Patterson, N. J.

factory of J. C. Todd, in Patterson, N. J.

THE TEST MADE.

That gentleman assisted him, and for three days they worked. The result is a roll of bagging that it puzzles experts to detect among the jute rolls. One of the members of the exporting cotton house of Doughty & Co., says it would not be pronounced other than jute bagging by one man in hundreds. It is proven to be uninflamable. Mr. Todd, an expert in bagging, says it is all the southern planter could desire in bagging. The interpretations could desire in bagging. The jute people have eyed askance the new caudidate. It is a shade darker, but will not stain cotton. It runs about two and one-quarter pounds to the yard, but can be made lighter. Seven and eight yards are required for a bale. Mr. Jack-son was not satisfied to trust to sentiment in giving his product to the market. Only when he demonstrated that he could make bagging at seven and one-half cents a yard, less than which jute people less money, would be go into the enterprise. This he can do. He will make Augusta his general headquarters for the offices and factories of the new company, though each state will have a factory, with fibre machines scattered about to produce and bale the crude material.

And Considers An Ordinance Changing the Registration Law—The Piedmont Expositon Heard From—The Grady Hospital.

Mayor Pro Tem Hutchison wants to change Atlanta's registration laws and during the ssion of the general council yesterday afternoon introduced an ordinance providing for

The ordinance provides that on and after June 1st, 1890, one of the duties of the city tax collector and his assistant shall be to register qualified voters of the city as they pay their taxes annually. That officer shall have prepared printed blanks containing the oath required of voters proposing to register now, in the form set out in the ordinance.

"It shall be his duty," the ordinance says,
"to administer to each tax payer wishing to register the required oath, and the voter shall subscribe to the oath in the presence of the col-lector or his assistant, who shall preserve all the affidavits and from them shall compile a book for each ward, showing the names and residences of the qualified voters for each ward. Only the names of those taking such affidavits by the 25th day of November in each year shall be placed on the registration books.

"The collector shall also register qualified voters taking the prescribed oath, even if they do not pay or offer to pay the taxes of the current year, and place their names on the books of their respective wards."

The ordinance then gives the oath required of voters desiring to register.

"If a voter removes," says the ordinance "from one ward to another between the time of registration and the time of voting, it will be the duty of the collector or register to change the name of such voter from the book of the ward of his former residence to the book for the ward into which he has moved, at his request."

Appreciating the great benefit the exposition is to Atlanta, the board hoped the council would make the necessary appropriation.

MAYOU'S OFFICE, ATLANTA, Ga., April 21st, 1890.—To the Members of the General Council: I deem it my duty to call your attention to an act parsed ly the last legislature and approved November 11th, 1889, which requires interest at seven per cent per annum to be paid on all "executions issued for taxes due the state, or any county thereof or any municipal corporation therein, whether issued as assessments for permanent improvements of streets or sewers of said municipal corporation or otherwise." This act is a general law of the state and was not passed at the instance of this city. I did not know of its passage until I was furnished with a copy of a Circular issued by the comptroiler general of the state calling the attention of the tax collectors to it.

I submitted it to the city attorney for his opinion on it, which he has furnished.

I attach hereto copies of the act, of my communication to the city attorney, and of his reply Respectfully submitted,

The Pool Selling.

The police committee submitted favorable reports upon the ordinances allowing pool selling on horse racing and baseball.

"I am against those ordinances," said Mr. Hendrix, "I never will vote to license gambling, and I think pool selling is the very worst kind of gambling. It draws crowds and induces drinking and rows. Atlanta is not so hard up that it is necessary to sell a gambling license for a little money. I want to go on record as against these ordinances."

"I would like to hear the ordinance read again," said Mr. Inman.

The ordinance was read. It simply allowed the sale of pools on baseball.

"I am against that ordinance," said Mr. Middlebrooks, "and I only introduced the one allowing pool selling on horse racing, because we have had that some time without receiving any revenue for it, and because I was requested to introduce it, too. Then, too, I thought Mr. Woodward was for it strongly."

"Hold on, said Mr. Woodward, "you all are a lot of church members and I am not. You appeared to want pool selling on horse racing. I wasn't for it much, but I though I'd go you one better and put in baseball."

I wasn't for it much, but I though I'd go you one better and put in baseball."
"I think," said Mr. Meador, "that there is from in Atlanta for pool rooms and churches; for preachers and pool sellers; for race horses and ball games, and for carriage horses and prayer meetings. There is room, too, for faro tables, from which the city would derive an income, but I am opposed to that."

Mr. Woodward wanted to make the license on either $1,000, or on both $,1500.

FINDS A COLORED IMITATOR OF HER CRIME

She Attacks Her Husband While in the Bath and Cuts Him to Death-A Frightful Crime.

ATHENS, Ga., April 21 .- [Special.] - Antioch, a small town on the Georgia branch, was stirred to its very center Sunday by a most shocking murder committed in its midst Henry Harris, a respectable negro lived upon Mr. James Young's place in that town, and to all appearances was very congenial with his wife. THE WIFE GETS A RAZOR.

Saturday evening the woman went over to her brother's house and asked for his razor, saying that her husband wanted to shave Sunday morning before going to church. brother loaned the razor and the woman went on home. She didn't cut her husband's threat that night as he slept, but waited until day came before she consum mated her purpose.

THE FIERCE ATTACK.

Sunday morning the negro got up and pre-pared to take a bath. The infuriated wife stood by watching her chance. As Harris stripped off his shirt his wife sprang upon him, razor in hand, and in the twinkling of an eye had ripped a gash across his entire body, completely disemboweling him and inflicting wounds of mortal nature.

THE FATAL RESULT.

The negro sprang after the woman, holding his entrails in, and reached the front door, when Mr. Young rushed in and supported him back to his room. Medical aid was summoned, and everything done to save his life, but in a short while death laid its seal upon him. The negress was arrested at once and lodged in jail. No reason is ascribed for the bloody deed. It is supposed that she must have been demented and slew her husband for some fancied wrong. Harris was a quiet, peaceful negro, and was well thought of. The motives prompting the woman to her awful crimes are hidden in Athens, Ga., April 21.—[Special.]—Athens came very near having a serious fight today. Some time since the firm of Rush & Lowry, druggists, was dissolved. Since then Dr. Rush has moved to Brunswick, where he now resides. Ill feeling seems to be existing between the gentlemen, and today they met on Broad street. Dr. Lowry charged Dr. Rush with slandering him. Dr. Rush denied it. Dr. Lowry demanded it in writing. Dr. Rush refused, and then came the demand to fight. Dr. Rush went into the store of Stein & Dorsey, to avoid a fight until friends quieted Dr. Lowry down. Dr. Lowry says that since the dissolution of the firm of Rush & Lowry, he heard that Rush had been telling slanderous things concerning himself as a man and a physician, and for this reason he demanded a written retraction. Dr. Rush stated that he heard that Lowry threatened his life, and when he met him he didn't propose to fight him because he believed him to be armed. The matter is pretty quiet though now. Words.

WHAT THE FARMERS OF THE SAVAN-NAH DISTRICT ARE DOING.

The Exchange Not Quite Rendy to Do Business and Thus the Farmers are Borrowing Money at the Same Old Stands.

SAVANNAH, Ga., —pril. 21.—[Special.]—The Farmers' alliance, of east and southeast Georgia, did not get its co-operative plans perfected for this season. It will be remembered that the alliance hoped to borrow capital in a lump and loan it out to the farmers. BORRRWING AS USUAL.

Considerable stock was subscribed to the general fund, but the capital was not obtained, and this season the farmers are borrowing as individuals direct from the factors and merchants as in former years. Mr. Cooper, the manager of the Savannah Alliance exchange, says that the experiment here has been most gratifying. He handled much more cotton than he expected to get, and he got valuable than he expected to get, and he got valuable experience. Next year the Savannah exchange will handle, at the very lowest estimate, 10,000 bales of cotton, which is a business of half a million

A MEETING OF THE FARMERS. A meeting of representatives from the alli-ances in ten counties was held here last week. The planters present reported that the cotton acreage in their counties will be larger this acreage in their counties will be larger this year than last. The alliance has a surplus fund in bank, which is used as collateral for the purchase of supplies. A member can buy provisions from his grocer in proportion to the stock he has in this general fund. For his bill the alliance becomes responsible, and if he does not pay it, the alliance does. All of the profits of the exchange are being turned into a general fund, which will become the capital of the Alliance bank. This bank will likely be started next year and will be known as the Farmers' and Laborers' bank.

Australian System Proposed for Savannah.

Savannah, Ga., April 21.—Alderman Falligant is getting ready to urge the next general assembly to adopt the Australian ballot reform system. He is getting the views of Governor Hill, Senator Arthur P. Gorman, Mr. Saxton of New York, Governor Davis of Rhode Island, and the friends and opponents of the system in Massachusetts. Out of these the alderman proposes to formulate a bill which will contain all the good points of the reform system, as tried in Rhode Island and Massachusetts, and as proposed in New York. PREPARING FOR MEMORIAL DAY THROUGHOUT THE STATE. Many Towns Postponing Their Local Obserin Order to Meet the Confederate Leaders Who Will Be Here.

WEST POINT, Ga., April 21 .- [Special.]-The memorial concert given Friday, sight at the opera house by Mrs. W. C. Laner, presi-dent of the Ladies' Memorial association, was most enjoyable and a decided success. The programme was varied and spiced, with songs, plano duets and recitations, closing with the drama, "A Box of Monkeys." The characters were well sustained, and the large audience had but one verdict—that is, that our home company can't be beat. We will have our memorial services on Friday at 3 o'clock, and the memorial address will be delivered by Mr. Arthur Hegman. Great crowds of our people, especially the old soldiers, will go up on the 26th to the great gathering of confederate soldiers in Atlanta to meet and shake hands with comrades of the war, which gave to the world a race of heroes as brave as ever faced a fce, What a great gathering!

And Barnesville Will Be Here, Too. BARNESVILLE, Ga., April 21.—[Special.]— The exercises, as usual, on Memorial Day, have been postponed to April 28th, at which time Hon. Walter B. Hill, of Macon, will deliver the memorial address. Quite an interesting programme has been prepared, and the occasion will command, as usual, a universal and fitting tribute to our country's dead he-"bivouac of the dead," is a monument not alone to our confederate dead, but alike honorable to the noble ladies whose untiring zeal and devotion erected this last loving tribute to the memory of soldiers whose heroism and valor is now no longer a section's, but a na-

This spirit is a marked characteristic of our people. Barnesville will be in Atlanta on the 26th.

The Day in Dawson.

The Day in Dawson. DAWSON, Ga., April 21 .-- [Special.]-Memo rial Day will be duly observed here this month, and the programme for the proper celebration of the event is about perfected. The exercises will take place Friday afternoon, instead of Saturday, as the entire community can take part that day, whereas on Saturday many could not do so. Mr. J. A. Laing, of our city will deliver the memorial address, and Miss Charlie Cheatham will read a poem. The musical programme is being arranged by Mrs. E. R. Griggs, assisted by a number of other ladies of our city, and the singing on the occasion will doubtless constitute a marked feature of the day's exercises. The Dawson Guards, our excellent military company, will lend their help towards making the day memorable, and the Terrell county confederate veterans are invited and expected to take part in the services. in the services, commemorative of southern valor and the glorious achievements of the dead heroes of the lost cause.

Bartow's Véterans Will all be Here. CARTERSVILLE, Ga., April 21 .- [Special.]-The Bartow camp of confederate veterans met here on last Saturday, and after transacting the usual business of the camp and receiving several new members, a motion for the veterans to attend the memorial exercises in Atlanta, in a body, on 26th instant, was unanimously adopted.

FOR THEIR NEW HOME.

The Ladies of the Home for the Friendless at Work-A Meeting Yesterday.

The ladies of "The Home for the Friendless" met yesterday at the Y. M. C. A. for the taking necessary steps regarding the building of a home.

The meeting was decidedly interesting.

The projectors of the institution resolved themselves into a committee, and will solicit subscriptions from all who may feel able to respond. The outlook was spoken of as very flattering, and the good Christian ladies who are working so earnestly in the interest of the home should be liberally helped by the charitably-inclined people.

A very urgent call is made upon the public by the ladies through THE CONSTITUTION to give as largely as possible.

A meeting will be held by the ladies next Thursday at the home, when a report of their work will be made.

COMING TO ATLANTA. THE FIRE RECORD.

> A CONFLAGRATION AT THE CORNER OF MAGNOLIA AND MANGUM!

Six Houses Burned and the Seventh Half Consumed-Other Fires During the Day in the City.

There was quite a conflagration on the cor-ner of Magnolia and Mangum streets yesterlay morning.

About 4 o'cleck a little store occupied by Messrs. Lindsay & Rice, near the corner, caught fire in some mysterious manner. Parties at a distance discovered the flames, but by the time the alarm was sent in the residence of Mr. G. B. Lindsny, adjoining, had become enveloped in flames, and the store and dwelling on the other side at the corner had also caught fire. By the time the companies could reach the cene the little store and its contents were burned. Mr. Lindsay's residence was too far gone to save anything, and the corner store and dwelling, occupied by Mr. W. H. Green, were almost too far gone to be saved. SOME NARROW ESCAPES.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay, and Mr. Rice, awoke after the flames had gained such headway on the dwelling that it was impossible for them to save anything except a few articles of wearing apparel.

Mrs. Lindsey and Mr. Rice were both slightly burned, but not seriously hurt.

slightly burned, but not seriously hurt.

They had been up until 2 o'clock with a sick child. When the child became quiet they and Mr. Green's family went to sleep, and slept so soundly that it took quite a time to awaken them.

A negro named Jordan pounded on Mr. Green's door until Mrs. Green sprang out of bed and rushed to the back door. As she opened it the flames burst into the room, and her screams awakened the balance of the family.

her screams awakened the balance of the family.

Jordan rushed in and grabbed two of the children by the arms and carried them out of the burning house. By that time Mr. Green realized the danger, and, with a number of his neighbors, he succeeded in saving a small portion of the clothing and furniture.

After that, two small houses in the same block, occupied by negroes, were burned to

THE FIRE ARRESTED.

By this time the department was on hand, and the spread of the fire was arrested, but not until the four dwellings, two stores and half of another dwelling had stores and half of another dwelling had been burned, with the stable near Mr. Green's dwelling, and a large amount of merchandise, furniture and clothing.

The losses, so far as could be estimated, amounts to between $4,000 and $5,000.

Mr. Lindsay's residence, with his furniture and all the wearing apparel of the family, worth from $1,500 to $2,000, was entirely destroyed. It was insured for $500.

The little store, worth about $100, with a $500 stock, were totally destroyed. There was about $300 insurance on the stock.

$500 stock, were totally destroyed. There was about $300 insurance on the stock.

Mr. Green's store is the property of Mr. Swartz; was worth about $800, and was insured. The stock was worth about $2,500, a small portion of which was saved. His dwelling was in the rear, and out of $500 worth of clothing and furniture he saved only a small portion. The stock was insured for $1,000, and the furniture for $200.

Mr. Green also lost a valuable horse, which ran back into the flames after he had been led as far as the door by the bridle.

The two negro houses were worth about $500. The furniture was saved from one, but the other was burned with all its contents.

The house that was partially burned was insured. The furniture was all saved.

The work of the department was admirable. The fire had gained such headway before the alarm was sent in, that a disastrous conflagration seemed imminent. A strong wind was blowing, and it was only by the most strenuous efforts that the adjacent buildings were saved.

The Second Alarm

The Second Alarm was sent in about 11 o'clock, and the fire was located under the pastry oven at the Kimball

The fire was soon extinguished with small damage.

The proprietors will renew all the woodwork and replace it with iron, near the ovens, so as to prevent a repetition of the trouble.

Still Another.

About 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon a burning sack caused an alarm from No. 77 Peachtree street. It was in the residence of Mr. Holbrook, but did not amount to anything except a short run for the department.

Raise the Money. This morning the committees having in charge the subscriptions to the Piedmont exposition, will resume their work. Little more than half the amount needed has been raised, leaving about $4,000 needed. There is not a business man in the city who is not benefited by the exposition. Not the business men alone, but the real estate owners and handlers, who are now making money out of increased values brought about by advertising, should subscribe liberally so that work for the exposition may begin at once. One more effort, with the old Atlanta enthusiasm, and let the work be completed.

True, 'Tis a Pity. It is a sad commentary on the system of spoils in political parties that when an honest man like Randall breathes his last the statement of his poverty makes men wonder. There are those who find it hard to understand how a man can keep his hands and conscience clean throughout a tempting and trying poltical life, when he might, without absolutely doing violence to his integrity, bend down a little way and grasp a fortune.

By the turning of a straw the office a national representative can be made to mean millions to the man who holds it; by his very silence in issues which might not be thought to immediately concern him, he can turn the golden tide into his favor; by the passive folding of his hands, he can reap the richest rewards and yet appear as one unspotted before the world.

How many men take advantage of this in our day and generation? There must be a great number of them; for when some brave and noble spirit who has moved among them and passed through the fire unscathed, dies poor in this world's goods and leaves to the nation the legacy of an unsullied memory, men wonder how it could have been, when wealth knocked daily at his doors.

"To the victors belong the spoils" has many meanings to many politicians now; but it is possible for men to live above the spoils of party, and in dying, to leave the world something better than gold.

Francis Murphy's Work. The professional prohibitionists and polfticians will have to suppress Mr. Francis Murphy.

Out in Iowa in this winter's campaign Mr. Murphy has made twenty thousand temperance converts, and they are all wearing his blue ribbon. This is magnificent, but it is not business.

What are the prohibitionists and politicians to do without conventions, processions, party organizations and the spoils of office? Then this gentle apostle of reform is too tame in his methods. He does not denounce the saloon men-does not abuse anybody. He wins through common sense, sympathy and the gospel. He stirs up no bitterness and encourages no strife. Mr. Murphy may go ahead in his own willful way, but we warn him that the eyes esional reformers are unon him What is the use of going to all this trouble about reform if we cannot worry somebody, and club an occasional sinner? This moral suasion is too monotonous

No political hurly-burly-no rows-no officers-no women staving in whiskey barrels and tearing down saloons-no politicians monkeying with the voters to secure the grand climax of prohibition and whisky too. This is what Mr. Murphy is leading us to, and we notify him now that the professional reformers of the country won't stand it.

In the meantime Iowa is being transformed into a moving mass of blue ribbons. There never was anything like it before.

Suggested by a Republican.

Colonel T. B. Edgington, whose patriotic speech on the federal decoration day at Memphis, two or three years ago, will be recollected by some of our readers, is in favor of a national constitutional convention The colonel thinks that the fifteenth amendment is the chief cause of our race problems, and should be repealed. Upon the application of two-thirds of the state legislatures, congress would be compelled to call a national constitutional convention. and that body, once assembled, could repeal the amendment, and revise the constitution.

The Memphis Appeal indorses the plan. as the best way out of our difficulties. The singular part of the business is that Colonel Edgington is a republican. It is well to bear this fact in mind.

Can They Cheat the Dynamo? The coming execution of Kemmler by the new electrical apparatus provided for the purpose is exciting world-wide interest and comment. And now the Electrical Review, an authority on such subjects, asks the question: "Can the dynamo be cheated?" It asks the question and answers it in the affirmative.

The Review advises all criminals condemned to die in this way to consult an electrical expert, and hints that such consultation may prolong their lives. It says that they will discover that a coat of invis thle varnish applied to the body of a man will make him invulnerable to the electric current, and that even hair oil, if applied to the head, will keep the current out of the brain, and give a man another chance for life: it would at least delay his execution somewhat, and a man might, by pure accident, so arrange his toilet before he seated self in the fatal chair, as to make the mark of the executioner a tedious and terusiness, and succeed in prolonging his

Kure in a very great degree. hat would be the use of all these erican on measures on the part of con-ching to als; and where would be the trated the whole power of his mind upon ex-sense in a man's voluntarily prolonging his death for one, or two, or three m The men who are to manage these electrical machines will be familiar with the work; they should know that such conditions as the Electrical Review hints at may exist, and they will be watchful and guard against them. They will doubtless prepare the body of the criminal for the ordeal through which it is to pass, and in view of the dangers which may attach to the making of the last toilet, they may do the work them selves and so make failure impossible. As we regard death by electricity now, it has some appalling features. They are going to give it a fair test, however, and not until it has been fairly tried can judgment be pronounced for or against it.

The Jamboree Abandoned.

The Pan-American excursion has been cut short, and Richmond is all that the members will see of the south. It is as well to state right here that the south will lose nothing by the failure of this aggregation of private secretaries, waiters and bootblacks to complete the itinerary marked out for them.

Secretary Blaine has never treated the south right in the matter. His arrangement of an excursion of flunkeys through this section after the delegates had been taken through the north, and returned home, deserved contempt.

Atlanta recognized this from the start, and consequently never went to any trouble about it. If the principal cities of the south had been placed upon the original programme, when the real delegates were present, they would have been given a cordial reception, but as it was very little interest was felt in the journeying of a party of hangers-on who represented not even their Felon Worship.

The charm which the horrible seems to ossess for some women is hard to under stand, for it is indeed a mystery to all; but the grim and grotesque are said to have fascination for certain minds, that are irresistibly attracted by it. Thus we see levely women, in whose pure minds no evil thoughts have place, clamoring for entrance at the doors of crowded courtrooms, and pelting red-handed murderers with roses; or stealing like pale ghosts to their guarded cells and blowing kisses to them through the bars!

But that is as nothing to the lengths some women go in this insane felon-worship. Yesterday, a dispatch from Vermont told us of a woman who went to the penitentiary and married the murderer of her husband. The iron bars divided them, but the ceremony was performed, and the woman went on her way rejoicing. The man is a prisoner for life, and she will only be allowed to see him twice a year.

Before her marriage to the man he murdered, she had refused his suit and set him adrift. But he slays her husband and captures her heart!

It is a queer world, and some of the women contribute a liberal share of queerness towards making it so.

A Refugee From His Race. After Sherman's rough riders had made both torch and sword do their worst in the Carolinas, there was one final outburst of thunder and flame, and peace came to the desolate land.

The blue wave of invasion with its grim front of bristling steel rolled slowly backthe troopers and cannoneers and foot soldiers, a hundred thousand or so, marched northward to fraternize with Grant's victorious legions, before laying down their arms to return to their homes.

But there were adventurous fellows among these veterans in blue, who had an eye for booty and beauty-dashing soldiers of fortune, who swore that the victors should enjoy the spoils of war, not through violence and common loot, but by so shaping the social chaos of the conquered states as to give them perpetual possession, sway and mastery. Foremost among these audacious schemers was a young officer named Albion W. Tourgee. Handsome, scholarly and ambitious, this stranger in a strange land dreamed a dazzling dream of place and power and pelf. The commanding powers of speech were his. He handled the pen with the easy grace so much admired when he flourished his saber. This young man looked about him in North Carolina, and saw an opportunity to win all that he sought. He had to do some things that were repugnant to a man of his tastes and culture, but he determined to risk everything. In order to succeed he had to ally himself with the blacks and array himself against his own race. His courage, magnetism and genius for organization easily made him a leader. He carried everything before him, and at last Judge Tourgee sat on the bench, armed with the penal terrors of the law, holding the lives and property of his enemies in the scales of justice. Too humane to be a Jeffries, and too proud to descend to the common level of corruption, the alien judge began to hate his office and its duties. When it was too late he found that even the highest position would not secure social recognition for one who was regarded by the people as a public enemy in league with their plunderers. a man with his ambition, social ostracism was a blight and a curse. He grew haggard and nervous, given to morbid moods and fits of anger. It galled him to see the common est white witness in his court treated with more respect than was accorded to the wearer of the judicial ermine who sat above

When the carpet-bag dynasty was swept away, and a white man's government was re-established, the judge quietly flitted away. But he went as a fugitive from respectability

-a refugee from his race. In the bitterness of his disappointment and wounded pride, unable again to seize the sword, he took up the pen, dipped it in venom, and aimed it at the society from which he was an outcast-the race he had attempted to degrade. He produced book after book, each one devoted to the glorifica tion of the negro, and full of dire predictions and threats against the whites. He wrote with such graphic power, and with such vivid coloring that he found many readers. But he subordinated his literary talent to his narrow, burning hatred of his own race He passed over everything that was bright and attractive in southern life, and concenceptionally tragic and pathetic phases of the nty years of reflection have not soft ened Tourgee's heart. By his own conduct he made the career he desired impossible in the land of his adoption, but he has carried into his voluntary exile nothing but undying hatred and a thirst for revenge. His eyes gray, but he counts each year as lost that does not see another book from his pen, designed to disorganize the whites of the outh, and pave the way for black suprem

These reminiscent thoughts have been called forth by the appearance of "Pactolus Prime," a new novel, by Albion W. Tourgee. It is written in the same old vein. The spirit of a wounded savage breathes through it, and each gloomy page makes it appear that in this fair land of the south the ruling race is cold-blooded and cruel, while the blacks are patient martyrs, barred out from their rightful place in society.

What shall we say of such a writer? Is he a monomaniac, or simply a refugee from his race.

Canning and Its Cost.

A Baltimore expert has recently furnished ome very interesting figures concerning the cost of canning fruits and vegetables. This writer in the course of his article

We all know that tomatoes are a staple article of food, and are in constant demand; for this reason a market can always be had at paying figures. But we also have other articles of food in tin equally in as large demand, and of which the south raises large quantities. I herewith name the various fruits and vegetables that will pay to pack, with present quotations:

	1 et 202
Peaches, 3 pound cans	.$2 00@2	25
Pears, 3 pound cans	1 50@2	00
Apples, 3 pound cans
Quinces,3 pound cans	1 40@1	50
Plums, 3 pound cans	1 25@1	40
Blackberries, 2 pound cans	5000	60
Blueberries, 2 pound cans	80@	90
Gooseberries, 2 pound cans	000	70
Whortleberries, 2 pound cans	700	80
VEGETABLES.

Asparagus, 3 pound cans$2	50 @3	00
Okra, 3 pound cans 1	25 @1	40
Okra and tomatoes, 2 pound cans	90 @1	00
Okra and tomatoe, 3 pound cans 1	15 @1 :	25
Peas, 2 pound eans 1	75 @2 :	25
Pumpkins, 3 pound cans	95 @1 (00
Tomatoes, 3 pound cans	821 01	00

There is profit in tomatoes, but other articles will pay the canners big money. A bushel of peaches will fill twenty three pound cans, and are worth $4.50 per case of two dozen, or about four dollars per bushel.

This year the fruit crop of Maryland and Delaware is killed, and the canning supply must come from the south. The business is especially suited to this region. Small canning outfits without much special machinery cost only a few hundred dollars, and the returns are quick and sure. Women and children can do most of the work.

In the course of a few years the canning of our fruits and vegetables will be one of the biggest industries in the south. The demand is always large, and the market is world-wide. Our people cannot afford to neglect this money-making business. THE DEMOCRATS say the republicans are

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

A LONDON special says: "Some of the London newspapers have been inconsiderate enough to harrow the feelings of polite society by publish-ing the tale of an East End tragedy whereby a lock laborer died of stavation. Mark Valle was the rictim's name, and his ratch victim's name, and his neighbors report him to be victim's name, and his neighbors report him to be a temperate man, who made every effort to obtain sufficient work to support his family, consisting of a wife and five small children. He had a little money due him on Thursday, and dropped dead at the paymaster's feet as he received it. The doctor who made the post mortem said death was due to starvation, and the man's stonach was entirely empty. The eldest boy told the coroner that their father had eaten nothing since the previous Saturday, though the children had had a little Saurday, though the children had had a little stew twice since then. Their father ate nothing in order that there should be more for his little ones. The West End was quite shocked when the Pall Mall Gazette published this story, and more than one good citizen stopped the paper in order fhat his wife and children might not be annoyed by the perusal of such vulgar atrocities.

It is; a disease, the writer referred to, maintained, but one from which there is no suffering these is writer referred to, maintained, but one from which there is no suffering; there is no illness or warning of approaching end; the patient suddenly ceases to exist and as suddenly fades from sight. With such conclusive testimony he has little doubt that many persons searched for have actually melted into thin air. He further states that at the moment his friend disappeared, a strong sulphyrons odo: his friend disappeared, a strong sulphurous odor pervaded the atmosphere."

Henry Grady's speeches and the extracts from his writings given in this volume show him to have been one of the most gifted men this country has ever produced. For if that orator he the best whose speeches most delight his hearers and are most eagerly read after they are put to the test of cold type, then it may be doubted if any American has ever surpassed Grady as an orator. The cold type, then it may be doubted if any American has ever surpassed Grady as an orator. The brilliant success he won as a journalist would of itself be enough to satisfy the ambition of most men; but in addition to being a prince among orators and journalists, the volume before us contains ample evidence that as a writer of character sketches, he might have rivalled Dickens if his powers had been devoted wholly to literature instead of to the very practical employment of daily newspaper work. Surely a career of unof daily newspaper work. Surely a career of un-bounded possibilities was cut short when Henry Grady died before reaching his fortieth year. Born into a comfortable place in the world, Grady seems never to have given much thought to the future of the first twenty years of his life. Ai-college he was not laboriously studious, and at the University of Virginia he trod the primrose paths that led to debating society honors in preference to the exacting routine that lies before the suc-cessful candidate for diplomas. A chance circum-stance decided him to adopt journalism as a profession, and then the bounding profession, and then the bounding ambition and restless energy of the man began at once to make him a noted figure in Georgia. Action—action; always action; was the motto of his ever-broadening career. From the time he launched his Rome newspaper upon the suprised Georgians until he died he never let the public forget him for a week. Fifteen years ago, just after the Rome venture had come to grief cause it soared on too free a wing. Bill Arp was predicting that the state of Georgia would soon be too small to hold Grady, and that nothing would content him short of the ownership of the New York Herald. This prediction was never wildlied because Grady soon found planty to do fulfilled, because Grady soon found plenty to do at home; but what man concerned with the Her-ald, or any other New York paper, has won such fams as that of this versatile and restless young

3. If the people of North Georgia (who are most vitally interested, and consequently most conversant with the state of affairs) think best that the state should settle with the lessees as Senator Brown suggests, do you not think the legislature could rely upon the judgment of North Georgia for the settlement and final disposition of this question?

could rely upon the judgment of North Georgia for the settlement and final disposition of this question?

The people of this section are universally of the opinion that the schedule proposed by Senator Brown is an equitable and just one, and those who have studied the question carefully (and their name is legion) have come to the conclusion that the Western and Atlantic railivad not only should but must be leased to the Louisville and Nashville railway, from the simple fact that should the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia (which now operates the C. S. and M. & C. railways from Cnattanooga to the west via. Cincinnati and Memphis) "gobble" up the Western and Atlantic, we of north Georgia will be luried in their howels and and fed on high arbitraries—fewer schedules, slower movement of freight and such other indigestable stuff until no nostrum will save us from a dysepptic death.

The north Georgia members voted with the members from middle and lower Georgia to give them competition when President Wadley, of the Central had his Ishmaelitish hand against every town on his line, but Savannah, and thus helped them out of a railroad wilderness, and should not they stand with north Georgia and return the kindness?

We are not actuated by any attachment or pref-kindness? We are not actuated by any attachment or preference for the Louisville and Nashville railway, but realize the law of self-preservation. Competition is active and hurts nothing, for under it this section has developed and added more than double to its material welfare since it was created.

The Attack on Fort Steadman.

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: I was greatly surprised at reading in a recent number of THE CONSTITUTION an item giving General Gordon credit for leading the last ag fressive movement of the war. To General Gordon belongs the honor of planning the attack on Fort Steadman, but to Captain Carson and his brave "sharp shooters" should all praise be given for the execution of that plan. On the 28th of March, 1965, Captain Carson, with one hundred picked men, selected for their skill and courage, assaulted and captured Fort Steadman, together with 500 prisoners, including General McLaughlin.

The resultorements promised never reached the scene of action, consequently this most hazardous undertaking was all in vain; one of the most daring achievements of the war proved abortive.

Several years ago Mr. Harry Edwards, then connected with the "Macon Telegraph," visitid Captain Carson at his home in Reynoids for the express purpose of learning the "true story" which was extensively circulated through that popular paper. Captain Carson has ceased the battle of this life, has gone to that reward promised the faithful, true and brave; let not this wreath of fance he ruthlessly snatched from his memory, but history record the truth, and announce to generations to come, the name of the "true Here," of Fort Steadman. This is but just to his patriotism, and just to his surviving family.

Raise the Money.

This morning the committees having in charge the subscriptions to the Piedmont exposition, will resume their work.

Little more than half the amount needed has been raised, leaving about $4,000 needed. There is not a business man in the city who is not benefited by the exposition. Not the business men alone, but the real estate owners and handlers, who are now making money out of increased values brought about by advertising, should subscribe liberally so that work for the exposition may begin at once.

One more effort, with the old Atlanta enthusiasm, and let the work be completed.

True, 'Tis a Pity.

It is a sad commentary on the system of spoils in political parties that when an honest man like Randall breathes his last the statement of his poverty makes men wonder. There are those who find it hard to understand how a man can keep his hands and conscience clean throughout a tempting and trying poltical life, when he might, without absolutely doing violence to his integrity, bend down a little way and grasp a fortune.

By the turning of a straw the office of a national representative can made to 'mcan millions to the man who holds it; by his very silence in issues which might not be thought to immediately concern him, he can turn the golden tide into his favor; by the passive folding of his hands, he can reap the richest rewards and yet appear as one unspotted be-

How many men take advantage of this in our day and generation? There must be a great number of them; for when some brave and noble spirit who has moved among them and passed through the fire unscathed, dies poor in this world's goods and leaves to the nation the legacy of an unsullied memory, men wonder how it could have been, when wealth knocked daily at his doors.

"To the victors belong the spoils" has many meanings to many politicians now; but it is possible for men to live above the spoils of party, and in dying, to leave the world something better than gold.

Francis Murphy's Work.

The professional prohibitionists and politicians will have to suppress Mr. Francis

Out in Iowa in this winter's campaign Mr. Murphy has made twenty thousand temperance converts, and they are all wearing his blue ribbon.

This is magnificent, but it is not business. What are the prohibitionists and politicians to do without conventions, processions, party organizations and the spoils of office?

Then this gentle apostle of reform is too tame in his methods. He does not denounce the saloon men-does not abuse anybody. He wins through common sense, sympathy and the gospel. He stirs up no bitterness and encourages no strife.

Mr. Murphy may go ahead in his own of the professional reformers are upon him. What is the use of going to all this trouble about reform if we cannot worry somebody, and club an occasional sinner? This moral suasion is too monotonous

No political hurly-burly-no rows-no officers-no women staving in whiskey barrels and tearing down saloons-no politicians monkeying with the voters to secure the grand climax of prohibition and whisky too. This is what Mr. Murphy is leading us to and we notify him now that the professional reformers of the country won't stand it.

In the meantime Iowa is being transformed into a moving mass of blue ribbons. There never was anything like it before.

Suggested by a Republican.

Colonel T. B. Edgington, whose patriotic speech on the federal decoration day at Memphis, two or three years ago, will be recollected by some of our readers, is in fawor of a national constitutional convention

The colonel thinks that the fifteenth amendment is the chief cause of our race problems, and should be repealed. Upon the application of two-thirds of the state legislatures, congress would be compelled to call a national constitutional convention. and that body, once assembled, could repeal the amendment, and revise the constitution.

The Memphis Appeal indorses the plan, as the best way out of our difficulties. singular part of the business is that Colonel Edgington is a republican. It is well to bear this fact in mind.

Can They Cheat the Dynamo?

The coming execution of Kemmler by the new electrical apparatus provided for the purpose is exciting world-wide interest and comment. And now the Electrical Review. an authority on such subjects, asks the question: "Can the dynamo be cheated?"

It asks the question and answers it in the affirmative.

The Review advises all criminals condemned to die in this way to consult an electrical expert, and hints that such consultation may prolong their lives. It says that they will discover that a coat of invisible varnish applied to the body of a man will make him invulnerable to the electric current, and that even hair oil, if applied to the head, will keep the current out of the rain, and give a man another chance for life: it would at least delay his execution ewhat, and a man might, by pure accident, so arrange his toilet before he seated self in the fatal chair, as to make the nock of the executioner a tedious and tersiness, and succeed in prolonging his

They will doubtless prepare the body of the criminal for the ordeal through which it is to pass, and in view of the langers which may attach to the making of the last toilet, they may do the work themselves and so make failure impossible.

As we regard death by electricity now, it has some appalling features. They are going to give it a fair test, however, and not until it has been fairly tried can judgment be pronounced for or against it.

The Jamboree Abandoned. The Pan-American excursion has been cut short, and Richmond is all that the members will see of the south.

It is as well to state right here that the south will lose nothing by the failure of this aggregation of private secretaries, waiters and bootblacks to complete the itinerary marked out for them.

Secretary Blaine has never treated the south right in the matter. His arrangement of an excursion of flunkeys through this section after the delegates had been taken through the north, and returned nome, deserved contempt.

Atlanta recognized this from the start, nd consequently never went to any trouble about it. If the principal cities of the south had been placed upon the original programme, when the real delegates were present, they would have been given a cordial reception, but as it was very little interest was felt in the journeying of a party of hangers-on who represented not even their masters.

Felon Worship.

The charm which the horrible seems to ossess for some women is hard to understand, for it is indeed a mystery to all; bu the grim and grotesque are said to have a fascination for certain minds, that are irre sistibly attracted by it. Thus we see lovely women, in whose pure minds no evil thoughts have place, clamoring for entrance at the doors of crowded courtrooms, and pelting red-handed murderers with roses; or stealing like pale ghosts to their guarded cells and blowing kisses to them through the bars!

But that is as nothing to the lengths some vomen go in this insane felon-worship. Yesterday, a dispatch from Vermont told us of a woman who went to the penitentiary and married the murderer of her husband. The iron bars divided them, but the ceremony was performed, and the woman went on her way rejoicing. The man is a prisoner for life, and she will only be allowed to see him twice a year.

Before her marriage to the man he murdered, she had refused his suit and set him adrift. But he slays her husband and captures her heart!

It is a queer world, and some of the women contribute a liberal share of queerness towards making it so. A Refugee From His Race. After Sherman's rough riders had made both torch and sword do their worst in the Carolinas, there was one final outburst of thunder and flame, and peace came to the desolate land. The blue wave of invasion with its grim front of bristling steel rolled slowly backthe troopers and cannoneers and foot soldiers, a hundred thousand or so, marched northward to fraternize with Grant's victorious legions, before laying down their arms to return to their homes. But there were adventurous fellows among these veterans in blue, who had an eye for booty and beauty-dashing soldiers should enjoy the spoils of war, not through violence and common loot, but by so shaping the social chaos of the conquered states, as to give them perpetual possession, sway and mastery. Foremost among these audacious schemers was a young officer named Albion W. Tourgee. Handsome, scholarly and ambitious, this stranger in a strange land dreamed a dazzling dream of place and power and pelf. The commanding powers of speech were his. He handled the pen with the easy grace so much admired when he flourished his saber. This young man looked about him in North Carolina, and saw an opportunity to win all that he sought. He had to do some things that were repugnant to a man of his tastes and culture, but he determined to risk everything. In order to succeed he had to ally himself with the blacks and array himself against his own race. His courage, magnetism and genius for organization easily made him a leader. He carried everything before him, and at last Judge Tourgee sat on the bench, armed with the penal terrors of the law, holding the lives and property of his enemics in the scales of justice.

Too humane to be a Jeffries, and proud to descend to the common level of corruption, the alien judge began to hate his office and its duties. When it was too late he found that even the highest position would not secure social recognition for one who was regarded by the people as a public enemy in league with their plunderers. To a man with his ambition, social ostracism was a blight and a curse. He grew haggard and nervous, given to morbid moods and fits of anger. It galled him to see the commonest white witness in his court treated with more respect than was accorded to the wearer of the judicial ermine who sat above

When the carpet-bag dynasty was swept away, and a white man's government was re-established, the judge quietly flitted away. But he went as a fugitive from respectability

-a refugee from his race. In the bitterness of his disappointment and wounded pride, unable again to seize the sword, he took up the pen, dipped it in venom, and aimed it at the society from which he was an outcast-the race he had attempted to degrade. He produced book after book, each one devoted to the glorifica tion of the negro, and full of dire predictions and threats against the whites. He wrote with such graphic power, and with such vivid coloring that he found many readers. But he subordinated his literary talent to his narrow, burning hatred of his own race He passed over everything that was bright and attractive in southern life, and concenals; and where would be the trated the whole power of his mind upon exceptionally tragic and pathetic phases of the Twenty years of reflection have not ened Tourgee's heart. These reminiscent thoughts have been called forth by the appearance of "Pactolus Prime," a new novel, by Albion W. Tourgee. It is written in the same old vein. The spirit of a wounded savage breather through it, and each gloomy page makes it appear that in this fair land of the south the ruling race is cold-blooded and cruel, while the blacks are patient martyrs, barred out from their rightful place in society. What shall we say of such a writer? Is ne a monomaniac, or simply a refugee from Canning and Its Cost.

A Baltimore expert has recently furnished some very interesting figures concerning th cost of canning fruits and vegetables. This writer in the course of his article

We all know that tomatoes are a staple article of food, and are in constant demand; for this reason a market can always be had at paying figures. But we also have other articles of food in tin equally in as large demand, and of which the south raises large quantities. There is profit in tomatoes, but other ar ticles will pay the canners big money. A bushel of peaches will fill twenty three pound cans, and are worth $4.50 per case of two dozen, or about four dollars per bushel.

This year the fruit crop of Maryland and Delaware is killed, and the canning supply must come from the south. The business is especially suited to this region. Small canning outfits without much special machinery cost only a few hundred dollars, and the re turns are quick and sure. Women and children can do most of the work.

In the course of a few years the canning of our fruits and vegetables will be one o the biggest industries in the south. The de mand is always large, and the market is world-wide. Our people cannot afford to neglect this money-making business.

A LONDON special says: "Some of the Londor newspapers have been inconsiderate enough to harrow the feelings of polite society by publish-ing the tale of an East End tragedy whereby a dock laborer died of stavation. Mark Valle was the victim's name, and his neighbors report him to be a temperate man, who made every effort to a temperate man, who made every effort to obtain sufficient work to support his family, consisting of a wife and five small children. He had a little money due him on Thursday, and dropped dead at the paymaster's feet as he received it. The doctor who made the post morten said death was due to starvation, and the man's stomach was entirely empty. The eldest boy told the coroner that their father had eaten nothing since the previous their father had eaten nothing since the previous sturday, though the children had had a little stew twice since then. Their father ate nothing in order that there should be more for his little ones. The West End was quite shocked when the Pall Mall Gazette published this story, and mo than one good citizen stopped the paper in order that his wife and children might not be annoye by the perusal of such vulgar atrocities.

A PHILADELPHIA letter says: "Nearly 200 people mysteriously disappeared from the city of Phila-delphia during the year ending with the opening of the present month. This is a remarakable ex-hibit, and one which reminds the writer of an arhibit, and one which reminds the writer of an article which appeared in a French scientific journal two or three years ago, wherein the author advances the theory that death is occasionally actual dissolution. It is; a disease, the writer referred to, maintained, but one from which there is no suffering; there is no illness or warning of approaching end; the patient suddenly ceases to exist and as sudden,y fades from sight. He says he has actually witnessed this phenomenon and that he was at one time walking with a friend who suddenly vanished and has never reappeared. With such conclusive testimony he has little doubt that many persons searched for have actually melted into thin air. He further states that at the moment his friend disappeared, a strong sulphurous odor his friend disappeared, a strong sulphurous pervaded the atmosphere."

From the St. Louis Republic Henry Grady's speeches and the extracts from his writings given in this volume show him to have been one of the most gifted men this country has ever produced. For if that orator be the best whose speeches most delight his hearers and are most eagerly read after they are put to the test of cold type, then it may be doubted if any American has ever surpassed Grady as an orator. The brilliant success he won as a journalist would of itself be enough to satisfy the ambition of most men; but in addition to being a prince among ormen; but in addition to being a prince adding or-ators and journalists, the volume before us con-tains ample evidence that as a writer of character sketches, he might have rivalled Dickens if his powers had been devoted wholly to litera-ture instead of to the very practical employment of daily newspaper work. Surely a career of unof daily newspaper work. Surely a career o bounded possibilities was cut short when I Grady died before reaching his fortieth year.

Born into a comfortable place in the world, Grady seems never to have given much thought to the future of the first twenty years of his life. At college he was not laboriously studious, and at the University of Virginia he trod the primrose paths that led to debating society honors in preference to the exacting routine that lies before the successful candidate for diplomas. A chance circumstance accided him to adopt journalism as a profession, and then the bounding mbition and restless energy of the mar began at once to make him a noted figure in rgia. Action—action; always action; was the Georgia. Action—action; always action; was the motto of his ever-broadening career. From the time he launched his Rome newspaper upon the suprised Georgians until he died he never let the public forget him for a week. Fifteen years ago, just after the Rome venture had come to grief cause it soared on too free a wing. Bill Arp was predicting that the state of Georgia would soon. predicting that the state of Georgia would soon be too small to hold Grady, and that nothing would content him short of the ownership of the New York Herald. for the settlement and final disposition of this question?

The people of this section are universally of the opinion that the schedule proposed by Senator Brown is an equitable and just one, and those who have studied the question carefully (and their name is legion) have come to the conclusion that the Western and Atlantic railroad not only should but must be leased to the Louisville and Nashville railway, from the simple fact that should the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia (which now operates the C. at reading in a receut number of THE CONSTITUTION an item giving General Gordon credit for leading the last aggressive movement of the war. To General Gordon belongs the honor of planning the attack on Fort Steadman, but to Captain Carson and his brave "sharp shooters" should all praise be given for the execution of that plan. On the 25th of March, 1865, Captain Carson, with one hundred picked men, selected for their skill and courage, assaulted and captured Fort Steadman, together with 560 prisoners, including General McLaughlin.

The resinforcements promised never reached the scene of action, consequently this most hazardous undertaking was all in vain; one of the most daring achievements of the war proved abortive.

Several years ago Mr. Harry Edwards, then connected with the "Macon Telegraph," visited Captain Carson at his home in Reynolds for the express purpose of learning the "true story" which was extensively circulated through that popular paper. Captain Carson has ceased the battle of this life, has gone to that reward promised the faithful, true and brave; let not this wreath of fame be ruthlessly snatched from his memory, but history record the truth, and announce to generations to come, the name of the "true Hero," of Fort Steadman. This is but just to his patriotism, and just to his surviving family.

Hardly had THE CONSTITUTION appeared, before enough money to pay a score of such fines as his, was voluntarily on its way to set the unfortunate Greek at liberty.

THE FINE IS PAID. Before Atlanta was yet astir, Mr. P. H. Snook, who had read Richard's appeal, had started a messenger to THE CONSTITUTION office with twenty-five dollars to pay the fine, and a note explaining that he wanted to set the unfortunate man free.

No time was lost in transferring Mr. Snook's generous relief fund from THE CONSTITUTION to the Fult on county jail.

Mr. Clark Howell, Sr., performed that task with a willingness. He surprised Solicitor Charlie Hill with an early call. Solicitor Hill was only too pleased to sign the order for Richard's release.

Armed with Solicitor Hill's order, Mr. Howell went at once to the jail, from the bars of which Richard has seen the sunlight for more than a month, the victim of circum-Handing the order to Jailor Osborne, he turned and, walking to the jail entrance, waited for the appearance of the scholarly Greek.

When Jailor Osborne swung back the big fron door and called Richard, he came from his cell slowly with the air of a man whose spirit was crushed.

PREE ONCE MORE. Richard made no demonstration of feeling when he was told that the jail need know him no more-to go and be free.

He was too overcome to speak for a moment or two. After turning back and picking up his ragged little old grip, he came out from be-hind the iron barred door. Until then he said not a word, moving about in quiet dignity, and with his head bowed on After the iron door had closed again, and the Greek was in the outer office of the jail he that walk are better imagined than written. In Mr. Howell's absence a number of gen tlemen called at THE CONSTITUTION office to pay the "Greek's" fine. But their generous stributions were not needed. Mr. Snook had come first, and the satisfaction of having done this good was his.

Among the gentlemen who had it in their heartstohelp the unfortunate man were Mr. John Akers, who come in soon after Mr. Howell left to effect Richard's release; Mr. A. Rosenfeld came on the same errand; then Mr. Don Bain, Mr. Alex Smith, Mr. J. M Alexander, and a dozen others followed.

All wanted to give to the deliverance of the man whose touching story they had read in The Constitution.

HIS BEST FRIEND. When Mr. Howell and the liberated Greek reached The Constitution office, Richard broke down completely. Great tears rolled down his cheeks, and for a time his emotion was uncontrollable. He overwhelmed Mr. Snook with thanks and blessings, and could speak of The Constitution only as his de-liverer and more than best friend.

Soon after his coming into the office, a messenger from the business office was sent out to a clothier and furnisher's store. The messenger soon returned with a complete outfit of wearing apparel from head to heel. While THE CONSTITUTION messenger was

Two or three years ago Tulley Williams became involved in a thieving case and ran away from Atlanta, leaving a number of recorder's and city court cases against him. Nothing was heard of him until his remains arrived yesterday.

As to the manner of his death few details could be obtained. It appears that, he went into a Jew store in Bessemer to purchase a pair of trousers. The merchant agreed to sell them to him for two dollars, and one account asys he refused to pay for them, and when a policeman was called he ran and was fired upon by the policeman.

The other is that he and the merchant disagreed about the price, and the merchant shot him.

The Spelling Bee To-Night is the Talk of the Day—A Complete List of the Spellers— The Details.

The spelling bee will occur tonight.

Everything is ready for the fray and every-body is impatient for the fun to begin. Several new names were added yesterday, among them Messrs. Charles E. Harmon, C. H. Willcox and Howell C. Jackson. The latter gentleman is confident that he can spell accordion, the catalogues to the contrary notwithstanding.

But wait till Dr. Sid Holland spells banjo! He will vocalize it in a manner not laid down

He will vocalize it in a manner not laid down in the dictionaries.

Dr. Hopkins has a loaded list that will demoralize the crowd on the first fire.

The judges are Professor Charles Lane of the Technological school, Professor W. W. Lumpkin of the Gordon Institute and Professor C. M. Neel, of Moreland Park academy.

The first prize will be a Webster's unabridged dictionary, latest edition, patent index. The booby prize will be an old-fashioned blue back speller.

Dr. J. G. Armstrong will deliver the prizes in his usual happy style and will have words of encouragement for the recipients of both.

The company will form by platoons, which will be commanded by Colonel G. W. Adair and Colonel Reuben Arnold, both learned in the lore of the blue back. The two colonels will appear in the traditional uniform of the Georgia muster, yclept a claw hammer coat and a pair of spurs, with other entrements to match.

Each speller, as his name is called, will advance three paces, fire and fall back. If he hits the bull's eye he gets the beet; if not he will be borne off on a litter to the mournful accompaniment of Professor Wurm's violincello.

The exercises will open with a brief and piquant lecture by Colonel Leonidas P. Hills, the only survivor of the terrible tragedy of Thermopylæ, who has grown young again telling his story.

THE SPELLING BEE.

The Poet of the Occasion Comes to the Front. Hearing that Messrs. John T. Glenn and Howard

Van Epps were to be leaders in the coming spelling bee, the poet ventured upon the following prophecy in regard to the result: Ready? the portly Hopkins cried. Ready! the frowning chiefs replied. With stately stride and hostile look

The opposing hosts their places took.

Now lifts bold Howard's face above
The satellites that round him move;
With front opposed the sturdy Glenn,
With answering shout leads on his men. Now see the gathering phalanx form As round these warriors, warriors swarm. Ah! softly the glittering gaslight sheds Its tender beams upon those heads, And shines upon the unbroken front. That soon shall reel with battle's brunt, When to the bass-viols blatant bray The supers shall bear the dead away, And awful groans from wounded given Shall vex the cloudy hills of heaven. Now close the ranks in dubious war, And horrid sounds are borne afar As each fresh victim's form appears Borne outward 'mid the groans and jeers Of mercenary multitude, Who bend their thumbs and cry: "More blood."

But see! what prostrate form appears!
"Tis Glenn! 'tis Glenn! prepare your tears. Now comes the champion of the north, Borne on ignoble stretcher forth, And while he bleeds at all his pores, He horrid imprecations roars. Alas! his warriors, sure, but slow, Are beaten backward by the foe. Ch! for the trumpet voice of Glenn, "One blast was worth ten-thousand men." But never again that form shall stand Amid his tried and trusty band, And never again that band shall close In mortal conflict with its foes; For now the southern chieftain cried. "Upon 'em, boys! we'll hang their hide Upon the fence; we'll cut 'em wide." And like a vapor thins away The minions of the north's array.

MR. WATTERSON'S LECTURE.

The Trail of the Trade Mark, He Says, is Over Us All.

Mr. Watterson's lecture is receiving a great deal of flattering comment from the papers.

His reception in Memphis amounted to an ovation, and the synopsis given in the Comnercial of that city brings out admirably the striking originality and characteristic shrewd umor of the man. With Bacon, he believed that money is the baggage of virtue—it impedes its progress, but it cannot wholly be left behind. The gambling propensity of man was set out in detail and lampooned, and hypocrisy, which is of the nature of false situations built upon money, was handled with vigor. His allu-sions to the tariff were humorous. He said sions to the tariff were humorous. He said that it would be remembered that he had said much about this from time to time. Switzer land's republican form of government was de clared by Mr. Watterson to be the one of the earth that is free from money consideration.

Elsewhere it undertakes to rule "The trail of the trade mark is over us all." TO BE ENTERTAINED IN ATLANTA. Yesterday Captain E. P. Howell received a legram from Mr. Watterson accepting an invitation to a supper to be given him by Captain Howell and Mr. J. J. Spalding at the Capital City club.

AT THE ANNUAL MEETING ELECT OFFICERS FOR THE NEXT YEAR

An Interesting Paper Read by Captain Starke

Plans for Next Saturday.

W. L. Calhoun, president.
Frank T. Ryan, vice-president.
John F. Edwards, secretary.
Amos Fox, treasurer.
Rev. T. P. Cleveland, chaplain.
Dr. K. C. Divine, surgeon.
R. L. Rodgers, historian.
Those are the officers of the Confederate Veteran's association, closted at the appunal meetng last evening. The executive, visiting and relief committees, usually elected at the annual meeting, are to be named by President Cathoun and ratified by the association at its next meeting. A PAPER BY CAPTAIN STARKE.

A very interesting sketch of General Earl Van Dorn, of Texas, was read by Captain J. F.

Starke. The writer took part with Van Dorn in the capture of the "Star of the West," and in many other daring exploits.

The paper concludes with an account of Van Dorn's assassination by the renegade Tennes sean, Peters.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The various officers and committees made their annual reports.

That of the treasurer showed a balance in bank, to the credit of the association, of a little over $1,800. The report of Judge R. L. Rodgers was particularly interesting. It is to be issued in book form within a few days, and sold at fifty cents a copy; all above the actual expense of publication to be donated to the association. The report of Major Kiser, chairman of the committee to raise the $1,000 needed for Memorial Day, was rather discouraging. What is to be done must be done at once, and Major Kiser urges the necessity for immediate action. The money must be had, and it must be in hand before Saturday. REDUCED RAILROAD FARE. Captain W. D. Ellis has secured half rates on all the roads in Georgia and on a number of roads extending outside the state. The reduced rate tickets will be for sale at every railway station in Georgia.

And not merely in the larger places.

One fair for the round trip. THE STORES TO CLOSE.

A motion was adopted unanimously, requesting every merchant and other business man in Atlanta to close his store or office from three to five p. m., next Satusday.

There is no doubt this request will be very generally observed.

ABOUT THE VISITING GENERALS. Some forcible remarks were made by Captain W. D. Ellis and received with round after

W. D. Ellis and received with round after round of applause.
"Now let us have it understood," said he, "that our old commanders are here as the guests of the association. They are asked to come here and meet and shake hands with the men that followed them in battle. Let us see to it that they are not taken in charge by a select few, and appropriated bodily to the exclusive edification of that select few, and made side-shows of, as distinguished visitors have not infrequently been done. We love them, and revere them—every one of them. We dont want to look at them through side-windows and back-doors, but face to face, and shake hands with them as long as they feel like shaking."

A BIG HAUL.

The Police Capture a Large Quantity of Goods. Sergeant Mike White made a big haul of tolen goods yesterday. Saturday, Mr. F. G. Glover, of Macon, applied to Chief Connolly for assistance in recovering some goods that had been purchased from his house, M. Nussbaum & Co., and had ering some goods that had been purchased from his house, M. Nussbaum & Co., and had been shipped to Forsyth, and then reshipped to Atlanta The purchaser received them about April 12th, and had them shipped to Forsyth under the name of Hurt. From there he reshipped them, partly by express and partly by freight, to this city.

On their arrival here he paid a drayman to carry them to Blank's store, on Chapel street, and afterwards hired another drayman to carry them to a negro house on Haynes street.

Detectives Bedford and Green were put to work on the case, with Sargeant Mike White, and the latter found a large box of domestics and other goods, the whole weighining 600 pounds; with two smaller boxes, containing shoes, hats and umbrellas purchased from other Macon parties in the negro house yesterday.

The following letters were received yesterday: New Orleans, April 18.—Dear Sir: It would give me very great pleasure to be present in At-lanta on Memorial Day, the 26th instant, but my official duties will prevent my leaving the state. Please convey my thanks for the invitation sent GENERAL BASIL W. DUKE. LOUISVILLE, April 19, 1890.—Mr. W. A. Hemp-hill, Secretary Confederate Veterans' Association, Atlanta, Ga.—Dear Sir: Your letter extending me an invitation to be present at the celebration of "Memorial Day" in your city on the 28th instant was duly received. I have delayed ansyering it in the hope that I would be able to come and ing it in the hope that I would be able to come and assist upon an occasion so full of interest to all who served the confederacy. I find to my regret that I camnot do so, and must forego the gratification of meeting so many of the gallant men I am proud to be permitted to call my comrades, and the mournful pleasure of rendering honor to the dead heroes who died for the cause we owed allegiance and the country we love.

Accept the assurance of my hearty and loyal sympathy with all that you do, and my best wishes for those so fortunate as to be participants in ceremonies so worthy and appropriate. Very truly, your obedient servant, RAILROAD RATES. . The following card thoroughly explains the rates which will be furnished by the railroads:

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: Through the kindness of Mr. Charles N. Knight, of the East Tennessee, of Mr. Charles N. Knight, of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, all stations on that road will be supplied with round trip tickets to Atlanta and return on the dices already published.

Mr. George P. Howard, of the Atlanta and Florida, has arranged the round trip tickets on that road, and Mr. McClesky, of the Richmond and Danville, has extended the mileage of round trip tickets to all stations within the Georgia territory. All the railroads have been exceedingly kind and courteous about this matter, and have not only granted cheap rates, but have done all they could to make the plan of getting tickets simple and easily understood.

The only thing necessary is to ask the station agent at any depot for a round fare ticket on the 24th, 25th and morning of the 26th and it will be furnished. This privilege extends not only to all old soldiers but to all who want to come to Atlanta to see our grand procession and once again to see Generals Johnston, Beauregard, Kirby Smith and others. A Party of Fishermen.

The Atlanta Fishing club, consisting of seventeen members, is back from a week's fishing trip at Ocean pend on the Georgia Southern and Florida road, and speak in very high terms of that beautiful place.

The fishing grounds are 161 miles from Macon on the Georgia Southern and Florida railroad, and the lakes abound in bream and trout. It is rumored that the members of this club will endeavor to build an elegant clubhouse at Long pond. Several large parties from other cities have also been there, and a new crowd from Atlanta is forming for a trup in May.

A New Coupler. A New Coupler.

Mr. J. M. Cosby's new automatic car coupler will be placed on several of the Western and Atlantic cars in order that a test of its work may be made.

It is claimed that this coupler is remarkable chiefly for its simplicity. A largeiron hook is so arranged that no matter at what angle the cars come together it is sure to catch. Besides this there is an automatic swinging nin which cars come together it is sure to caten. Besides this there is an automatic swinging pin which will enable a car provided with the Cosby patent to work on any car provided with the old-fashioned link pin.

The arrangements for uncoupling the cars are as perfect as the arrangement for linking them together. By a twist of a wheel which can be alread gither on the car or at the side.

placed either on top of the car or at the side, the attachments are loosened and the cars separated.

Any accident to the men using the new coupler is made absolutely impossible by a projection on one side of the bumper which leaves a free space of six or eight inches in case the brakemen have to lead the old-fashioned link

These same gentlemen, with a number of others, are at work on a boom for Montgomery. Everything will be ready for this in about three months from now, and they say it's to be the biggest boom in the history of Alabama.

Hundreds of the invitations have been received by their numerous friends in Rome, and there is much interest in the event, as many will attend from here.

The wedding of Miss Branham and Mr. Appleton in Atlanta on the 30th of April, is a topic of discussion among the ladies, who anticipate from the proposed arrangements that it will be a most fashionable occasion. It is said that it will be entirely in English style.

Another wedding exciting much interest will occur on the same day at Cedartown. The lady has many friends in Rome, having visited here frequently.

SOME PEOPLE YOU MEET.

There has been very little talk about the election of members of the legislature from Fulton county, but I have it from very good authority that Mayor Glenn may be considauthority that Mayor Glenn may be considered a factor in the race. Not that His Honor has said he's willing, or he's not willing; but a number of his friends have approached him on the subject, and the replies they have received seem to watrant them in saying that Colonel Glenn may possibly help make laws for the state of Georgis. It is needless to add that as a member of the legislature, Colonel Glenn would be an honor to Fulton county, as Mayor Glenn has been to the city of Atlanta.

"Well, its just wonderful, that it is, was the emphatic exclamation of a fall, handsome gentleman whose face had a familiar look, and who stood in the center of a group of gentlemen at the Kimball yesterday, "Yes, sir," he continued, "I never saw anything like the growth of Atlanta and her progress. It is heavend anything I could have imagined."

beyond anything I could have imagined."
The tall man was Colonel John Paul Jones, for several years a resident of. Atlanta, during which time he was owner and editor of The Evening Journal. Colonel Jones now lives in St. Louis where he is general western manager for the American Marble company of Georgia. He has been in the city for several days, and has spent a great part of his time looking over the city he left less than three years ago.

"I consider Atlanta the very best city of its size in America," was another of his com-ments. "You have here the greatest possible blessing in the climate, which is the finest in the world, and then you have the push and energy to make a success of anything you undertake. I am the firmest believer in Atlanta.'

John Paul Jones is a mascotte. He is one of those men few and far between, who seem to good luck to every enterpris which they are engaged He, instance, was one of the owners the Toledo Blade, and, though the Nasby got the credit, it was largely due to his excellent business management that the Blade become the great piece of property it now is. The Bee, at Toledo, another of his properties, grew to be a gold mine. He made money out of the Journal, and sold it at a good price. He helped Ed Byington start Ledger, and seems to have left Byington some of the good luck which "mascottes" are supposed to strew around

There are but few instances of the good fortune he has brought often to others, some-times to himself. The luck has, in some instances, came too late to do Colonel Jones the good he had reason to expect, but often it has, and he is pretty well ahead—as men are reck-oned—in this world's goods. And then, too, he's one of the best men in the world, as everybody who knows him will testify.

Colonel Eb Williams, the tall and handsome Augustan, whom his friends expect to put in the next legislature, passed through Atlanta, yesterday, on his way to Mobile. Eb doesn't have much to say about his race, but the confidential way he refers to the next house indicates that he is pretty well satisfied with the

There is one man in Georgia who allows his friends to call him "Tobe Jackson," and that man is Gus Fite, of Cartersville, the able r-general of the Cherokee circuit. The birth of the nickname dates back to the trial of Jackson, in which he figured prominently as one of the attorneys. Gus was in Atlanta yesterday, and was, of course, warmly wel-comed by many friends here.

WEST END NOTES.

Mr. G. A. Howell has gone for a few days to Virginia on business.

Mr. J. T. Dargan and family, of Dallas, Texas, are stopping with Burgess Smith preparatory to a visit to the north and east for the summer.

It is understood that the directors of the Union Street Car company will soon place on their Westriew cemetery line some light running, smokeless and modern dummies to accomodate the increased demand for rapid transit from suburban residents. This is the longost street car line in the city, and the need for rapid transit is very urgent, as many of the patrons of the road live at the extreme end, which is about four miles from the center of Atlanta. With accomodations of this kind, thousands of people would go to the wild woods for flowers and recreation every summer day, and hundreds of people would go to this line of road are some of the most imposing eminences, and on a number of them have recently been built some of the most graceful resigo to diffiner who now cannot spare the time. Along this line of road are some of the most imposing eminences, and on a number of them have recently been built some of the most graceful residences in the state; and every year but increases the interest to persons traveling by this line to Westview.

As an illustration of the value of West End property, read the following: Last fall one of the improvement companies purchased a lot of land in West End, paying $5,500. A few months therefore they sold it for $8,000. In two months the purchaser sold the lot for $12,000, and a few weeks ago it sold for $15,000. Last fall three gentlemen, residents of Atlanta, bought, a lot for $10,000 and sold the same ten days ago for over $16,000. About a year ago a gentleman from the interior of New York came to Atlanta to reside. Looking about for a home he finally located on the extreme edge of West. End, paying about $3,200 for a four acre lot. Two weeks ago he sold the same property for about $9,000. And still he is not happy, for he has turned right around and invested the proceeds in West End property.

Dr. J. W. Lee, pastor of Park street church, is accomplishing much good in West End. Since he began his pastorate he has increased the membership of the church twenty or thirty per cent, and has increased the congregation a hundred per cent. Every Sunday almost every available seat is occupied, and many people come out from Atlanta to hear him. His Sunday evening service is held at 5:30 olelock, and the church is full morning and evening.

One of the pretiest churches about the city is the Baptist church, in West End, presided over by Rev. S. Y. Jamieson, who has labored zealously in behalf of its congregation. The church is most tastefully and elegantly decorated and furnished, and is a charming place to spend the Sabbath morning.

and is a charming place to spend the Sabbath morning.

It is understood that Mr. G. A. Howell and family will saif for Europe in May, and will be absent several months. Mr. Howell is now and has always been one of West End's most enterprising and public spirited citizens, and every resident of the community will wish him a shappy voyage, a pleasant sojourn, and a safe return.

Mr. W. J. Van Dyke's two residences on Lee street are modern and substantial structures. They are each two-story buildings, occupy a commanding position, and will be an ornament to that portion of West End.

Dr. E. L. Connoily is improving and beautifying his premises on Ashby street, and in conjunction with the street improvements on that street, the appearance of things in that vicinity is greatly enhanced.

with the street improvements of that vicinity is greatly enhanced.

Mr. Jonathan Norcross is erecting another cottage on West End avenue. Mr. Norcross has erected quite a number of houses recently.

The town council has contracted for from 8,000 to 20,000 lineal feet of stone curbing, preparatory to laying sidewalks in every portion of the town where travel makes it desirable. Before the end of the year West End will present the appearance of a first-class suburb.

Mr. Warner, who came to Atlanta several years ago, is so impressed with the value of West End property as a place of residence, that he has recently purchased fifteen or twenty acres in the city limits, which he is now carefully grading and improving. He is is laying stone curbing around it all, and will lay sidewalks in front of every lot, and place the the entire property in an attractive shape for persons in search of homes in the suburb, where they can have garden, stables, yards, fresh air and pleasant neighbors.

Mr. Wood, who recently sold his home on flaugh street, is grading a lot on the corner of Baugh and Lawton streets and will build him a residence thereon.

DEALING IN FUTURES.

THE PROVISIONS OF THE MUCH DIS-CUSSED MEASURE.

Taken by Sections, the Matters Aimed at Are Hero Presented in a High Synopsis— Several Merchants Interviewed.

One of the most widely discussed measur that have been before this congress is the Butterworth bill, "defining 'options' and 'fa-tures,' and imposing special taxes on dealers thersin."

The bill is now on the docket for a third reading, and prominently "within the range of practical politics." It's introduction excited little or no comment, and less apprehension or the part of those to be effected by it.

The favorable committee report fell with stunning effect. Brokers and stock exchanges waked up very abruptly to the consciousness that Othello's occupation was in imminent danger.

And a great deal of hard work has been done in a very short while, to defeat the passage of the bill. From all over the country protests and memorials have been pouring in, and are still coming.

A quiet but very perceptible pressure has been brought to bear on the other side, showing a marked difference of opinion as to the real merits of the bill. WHAT IT AMOUNTS TO.

Directly the measure effects important business interests, and indirectly it effects the great bulk of business of nearly all kinds, all over the country.

A synopsis of the bill must be of general The first section defines "options" as "any ontract or agreement whereby a party thereto, or any party for whom or in whose behalf such contract or agreement is made, contracts to have or give to himself or another the option to buy or sell at a future time any of the grain or other commodity" mentioned in Section eight provides that on the first day of each week, all dealers in options or futures shall make complete return and report under oath, to the collector of the district in which the business is done, if any, and all such contracts, and to pay the sums of five cents a pound, or twenty cents a bushel, as specified.

The Liver

When out of order, involves every organ of the body. Remedies for some other derangement are frequently taken without the least effect, because it is the liver which is the real source of the trouble, and until that is set right there can be no health, strength, or comfort in any part of the system. Bedridden For One Year.—Dr. Evans visited my wife who had been completely bedridden from female weakness, paralysis and nervous exhaustion, and gave her one magnetic treatment, which so far restored her that she arose from her bed the next morning and walked around the room, and in a few days she was able to take a carriage and visit the doctor at his office. She is now quitea well woman, requiring only a little more time to build up her wasted and exhausted system, and we would be pleased to have anyone who so desires to call on us and learn for themselves the apparent miracle Dr. Evans has wrought on her.

A NEW THEATER.

CHANGES TO BE MADE IN THE OLD CAPITOL.

A New Theater, and Other Plans Which Will Add Greatly to the City—The Owners, A magnificent new theater.

A real estate exchange. A new bank. The finest restaurant in the south.

all the insurance men in Atlanta. A club room for business men. And rooms to accommodate the theatrical companies who visit the city will soon be located in the old capitol building. To make all the improvements necessary will cost a vast amount of money, but Messrs. Hurt, Collins and Venable, who own the building, have the means and will spare no expense to carry out the plans they have Mr. Collins yesterday gave an idea of what will be done.

"We intend," he said, "to add two stories to the present edifice. Then our plan is to build the finest opera house in the south on the first floor. The front of the building will be given up to the real estate men, and we will have an exchange where every real estate transaction will be registered, which will be conducted on the same plan as the New York and Philadelphia exchanges.

"At the corner of Marietta and Forsyth streets will be located our new bank, for which we already have the charter. The idea is that if any one living away from the city owns any property which they wish to dispose of they can sell it to better advantage for one-third cash and the balance on time. The bank will discount the notes and will then make the eight per cent.

"Upstairs we will have the handsomest offices that can be got up. They will be rented either singly or in suites, and on ten years' lease, and by this means we hope to concentrate the insurance business.

"We also intend to have the finest restaurant in the south. This will be suitable for theatre parties or for banquets. Atlanta needs a restaurant of this class and we intend to furnish one, even if we have to run it at a loss for a time.

"Besides this we will reserve some room and fit them up handsomely for the theatrical people. They will be able to get their meals at the restaurant and will not have to go out to reach the theater.

"These changes will be made and the work will be begun within the next ten days, unless something unforeseen takes place. Of course our object is to make money, and we think that by carrying out these plans we can do it. 'We have had several offers to lease the building for ten years, and if a large enough sum was tendered us we would take it and let the lessees make what improvements they wanted. It is nearly certain, however, that we will ourselves do the work and do it imme-

IN MEMORY OF MISS HUBNER.

Resolutions of Her Death Adopted by the Fourth Presbyterian Sunday School.

Just as the glad Easter week sung through all nature the resurrection of the dead, in the myste-rious dispensation of His Providence, but with infinite tenderness to her in the morning of life and usefulness, our Heavenly Father called home our much-beloved friend and co-worker in this Ethool, Miss Ida Hubner. While we grieve that the blighting influences of the Death Angel has fallen upon and borne from our little band one of the brightest, best and most useful members, we bow with humble submission to God's never-erring will.

Thrice blessed are they who are thus summoned from earth in the spring-time of life, and spared the long Christian warfare that comes with added years.

She leaves as a treasured legacy to us, who loved her, the pleasant memory of eighteen brief, beautiful years. With mind brilliant and richly stored in poetic thought, with character full of gracious sweetness and gentleness, she entwined herself close around the hearts of those who had the privilege of intimate association with her. Added to these charms, she possessed, in abundant measure, the grace of God's spirit, and with heart filled with an earnest desire to serve Him who had nurchased her with His precious blood, she early rchased her with His precious blood, she early secrated herself to His service, and was zealous consecrated herself to His service, and was zenous in Christian work.

In her death, the Sabbath school loses a faithful member, whose quiet, unassuming work for her master, whose influence for good among her companions, whose patience in suffering, all teach us the realities of the Christian religion.

With tender love and heartfelt sympathy we mingle our tears with all who mourn her loss, and especially so with those of her own family. We earnestly pray God to sanctify this severe affliction to the good of us all, trusting in the great head of the church to raise up others to fill her place.

Hon. Henry Watterson's Lecture.

The city press has already called the attention of all lovers of intellectual pleasures the this event. This brilliant lecturer will deliver in Atlanta, next Thursday night, his famous lecture on "Money and Morals." The ideas of such a prominent man as Mr. Watterson on such a subject, given with his well known originality and enriched with sparkles of wit and humor, cannot fail to be very interesting for both the student of human nature and the appreciator of refined wit-ticisms and humorous sayings.

Mr. Watterson is said to introduce in his subject many satrical points that will be much enjoyed. He has aimed to instruct and to please, and his success everywhere has proved how well he has realized that aim.

For us, Mr. Watterson has yet another claim to a warm reception in Atlanta. He once lived among us, and he is a true southern man. As a public man, as a journalist, he has always courageously fought for the interests of the south and for the democratic principles, and we know how highly esteemed he is by friends and foes. We owe him an ovation, and we hope to see it given to him next Thursday.

I have been a sufferer from weakness for eight years and tried many remedies that did me no good. THE GEORGIA CONVICTS.

A NORTHERN MAN WANTS INFORMA-TION.

The Name of "Whipping Boss" Excites the Chicago Papers' Wrath—All the Questions Answered.

The north and the northwest appears to be full of gentlemen who long for information about the south. The following letter making inquiries con-

The following letter making inquiries con-cerning the convict system of Georgia was re-ceived yesterday at the executive department. COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, April 18, 1890.—To His Excellency, the Governor of Georgia, Atlanta— Dear sir: What of the enclosed item? Is the "convict lease system" for women, where they work under the lash, in vogue in your state? Are the white and black women worked in the same gang?

same gang?
Please excuse my curiosity to get at the truth of the case. Very respectfully,
D. R. WITTER.

The enclosed item read:

330 Eleventh avenue.

The enclosed item read:

Governor Gordon, of Georgia, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean, last Friday appointed a man by the name of Cowan as whipping boss for the women's camp of prisoners employed at broom-making under the convict lease system. What has become of the boasted chivalry of Georgia when the handsome, courteous Governor Gordon finds it expedient to appoint a man as whipping boss in a camp of women prisoners? When such things are reported from far-of Siberia, without waiting for proof, the American people rice up in indignation to abuse the inhumanity of the car. But what shall be said of the same system when it has the sanction of law in one of the United States and the "whipping boss" receives his commission from the hands of a governor who represents that class of southern mei who are opposed to allowing womea-to work for fear of soiling their pretty hands or planting wrinkles on their white brows?

Governor Gordon and his secretaries are al-Governor Gordon and his secretaries are al-ways willing to furnish any information in their power to those who wish to increase their knowledge of southern people and their customs, and some interesting facts will soon be imparted to Mr. D. R. Witter. THE LONE WHITE WOMAN. It may be a difficult thing for the northern mind to grasp, but it is a fact that there is no criminal class of white women in Georgia.

At the present time there is one, and only one, white woman convict in the Georgia penitentiary. She came from Illinois, and settled in Dade county with her husband. She finally got tired of the man and murdered him. For this little indiscretion she will serve a life sentence.

She is, however, confined by herself.

ORIGIN OF THE WHIPPING BOSS.

Mr. Witter will also be informed that the duties of the "whipping boss," about which the Inter-Ocean howls, are nothing more or less than those of the warden of northern

Several years ago complaints were received showing that in some cases the guards placed over the prisoners who worked on the railroads and farms showed a disposition to be brutal and used more violence than was necessary.

The legislature considered the subject thoroughly and in order to protect the prisoners from violence they made it a criminal offence for any guard, keeper, or state official to raise his hand to a convict or to punish him in any

PREVENTING ABUSE OF THE OFFICE. At the same time they established the office of whipping boss, and empowered him to punish refractory prisoners. That the office might not be abused, it was made necessary for the president of each penitentiary camp to nominate the whipping boss, or warden. If the nominee bears a good character, he is indorsed by the principal keeper of the penitentiary, and on the joint recommendation of these two officials, the governor is required to issue a commission. Another piece of information which will probably not be furnished Mr. Witter, is that Governor Gordon is no way different from any other southern gentleman. They not only honor, but admire, every lady who has the courage to face the world and labor for an honest living. At the same time they prefer to assume the hardships of the world themto provide for the ladies of their family, and save them from "soiling their pretty hands or planting wrinkles on their white brows." Mr. E. S. Mallory, of Kathleen, Fla., in making a shipment of his excellent strawberries to Messrs. Holbrook & Robison, did not forget a nice basket of them for The Constitution. The strawberries are first-class.

How to Buy Cigars.

Is it more profitable for a retail dealer in cigars to buy from the manufacturer than from the jobber? This is a vital question for every retailer to consider.

We have saved our customers the jobber's prifit for the last six years. This accounts partly for the steady increase of the demand for our fine Havans cigars which equal in taste, flavor and Spanisn workmaniship the best imported from Cuba; and they give entire satisfaction, for Atlanta's prominent men have been our steady customers ever since we established our factory.

We sell to the retail trade at wholesale price in quantities of one box and upward. We gnarantee our goods and ship them to any place in the country. And we are willing at any time to take the goods back and refund the money if they do not turn out to be as we represent them. The buyer runs, therefore, no risk at all.

There are many smokers who pay high prices for cigars which do not satisfy their taste. Let them call atour factory and get their money's worth, or write to

HIS NECK BROKEN.

ALITTLE BOY FALLS IN A WELL ON HUNTER STREET.

Playing With His Little Sister He is Misse ed His Cap is Found on the Well Curb and the Body in the Bottom of the Well.

There was a sad tragedy at No. 124 East Hunter street last evening.

Little Tommie Harper, the six-year-old son of Mr. J. H. Harper, who lives at No. 127 East Hunter street, was playing in the front yard of a neighbor, just across the street with his little sister.

the front yard of a neighbor, just across the street, with his little sister.

About half past 4 o'clock his little sister came home without her brother, and his mother and aunt began a search for him. There was nobody at home at the house where they had been playing, but a number of persons had seen the children together in the yard.

A search was at once instituted, and the little how's can was found on the little boy's cap was found on the curbing of the well. The searchers at once came to the conclusion that he was drowned in

The alarm was raised and a number of the neighbors repaired to the place where the cap

Drag hooks were procured, and the well searched. It is nineteen feet deep, and about nine feet of water in it.

After a few passes the hooks caught, and were drawn to the surface.

They held the body of the child.

An examination showed that the boy was dead, and that his neck had been broken by the fall. Just how the accident occurred nobody can tell, but it is supposed that the child climbed up on the curbing of the well, lost his balance, and fell in the well. The sympathies of many friends are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Harper in their grief over the tragic death of their child. The funeral will occur today. Coroner Avary was notified, but an inquest was deemed unnecessary.

THE CHATTANOOGA MEETING. Great Preparations Being Made for the Three Days Celebration. Great preparations are being made in Chattanooga for the first annual encampment of the United Confederate Veterans of the United States, which will be held on July 3rd, 4th and 5th. General order number three, which was issued by Governor Gordon, the general commanding was published in full some weeks ago in THE CONSTITUTION. In it a programme of the exercises is given and the daily and weekly press of the whole country is requested to aid in the benevolent and patriotic objects of the veterans by promulgating the notice of the reunion.

THE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

They Will Escort the Grand Lodge Memorial Day.

There was a conclave of Cœur de Lion con mandery, Kughts Templar, last evening.
It was decided, under a dispensation of the grand commander, A. G. Howard, to turn out in full force as an escort for the grand lodge at the laying of the corner-stone of the Confederate Veterans' home on Memorial Day.

The commandery numbers about 150 members, and will turn out in full uniform with the beautiful regalia of the order, and will march in the procession, forming one of the most imposing spectacles of that great occasion.

The full programme of the parade will be announced by Eminent Commander George H. Holliday. Invitations have been extended to sir' knights in the neighboring cities, and it is expected that quite a large number will be present to participate in the ceremonies.

Grand Master John S. Davidson, F. A. M., who is also a very prominent Knight Templar, will be present and officiate at the laying of the corner stone of this grand institution, which will stand forever as a monument to the fidelity of Georgians to the veterans of the war.

THE COMING SALE.

TWENTY CHOICE LOTS IN INMAN PARK AT AUCTION.

The Most Beautiful Suburban property of Atlanta and Its Great Future-A Few Points About It.

It was announced last Sunday that the East Atlanta Land company would sell at auction on April the 30th about twenty of their choicest lots in Inman park. Yesterday this announcement was talked about considerably in real estate circles. The fact that this property is strictly gilt edge, and considered by many the prettiest in Atlanta, is sufficient in itself to attract the attention of home-seekers and capitalists. The adtion of rome-seekers and capitalists. The advantages Inman park offers over other resident property in this city are many. When you have built you a home, you know exactly the kind of a home will be opposite or next to yours. Nothing less than a three thousand dollar house can be erected. This fact insures the very best class of people, and makes the property very desirable. A prominent real estate man said yesterday: "Lots in Inman park have been selling, in my estrinapeople, and makes the property very desirable. A prominent real estate man said yesterday: "Lots in Inman park have been selling, in my estimation, at a low figure, when the prices realized from sales in other parts of the city are taken into consideration." "Inman park is bound to be one of the most delightful as well as the most aristocratic place in Atlanta." This seems to be the universal opinion of people-versed in real estate matters.

Several beautiful houses are being erected, and several parties will begin in a few days. Mr. Gould, of the American Trust and Banking company, will creek a $15,000 house just above the beautiful home of Mr. Joel Hurt. The specifications for Mr. Phil Hartalson's residence are about inished, and work will begin at once. His home will cost $15,000. Messrs. J. M. Beach, George E. King, W. R. Dinmock and Mrs. M. D. Cole will begin work on their houses within ten days. Cost of these will be about $8,000 cach.

If you have a little spare time, go out and look through the park. It is the most beautiful place of all our suburbs. Remember, also, that twenty choice lots will be sold on April 30th.

Howard vs. Glenn, Trustee. Corporations. Debtor and Creditor. Pleadings. Parties. Judgments. Service. Fraud. Stockholders. Evidence. Admissions. Before Judge Roney. Richmond Superior Court. Blandford, J.—1. Whereupon a bill filed by creditors of an insolvent corporation, a decree was rendered appointing a trustee with authority to sue and collect from the corporators a certain assessment and call made upon them by the decree, the officers or persons representing the corporation being parties defendant to the bill, and the court being one of competent jurisdiction, such decree was binding upon a subscriber to the capital stock of the corporation, though he was a citizen of another state and was not served with process.

(a) An amendment of the charter of the corporation changing its name from the National Express company to the National Express and Transportation company, was not so material as to relieve a subscriber to its capital stock from liability to pay for the same.

(b) The pleas of the statute of limitations are res adjudicata. 81 Ga. 383.

2. The decree upon which this suit was instituted having set forth the outstanding creditors for whose benefit it was instituted, a plea that such creditors were not set forth in the present action was insufficient.

3. 4. Fraud between the corporation and the corporator would not defeat an action by creditors of the corporation, nor an action brought by the trustee appointed by the court to collect a corporator's unpaid subscription to the capital stock.

5. That the decree was supplemented with a provision that if the stock'holders should pay a certain per cent upon their subscription within a certain time, this should operate as a discharge of such subscriptions, is of no avail because the defendant did not pay or offer to pay the specified percentage.

6. If the defendant became a stockholder of the corporation, though his subscription was induced by fraud, he would be liable to its creditors for so much of his unpaid subscrip-tion as, in connection with the amounts due tion as, in connection with the amounts due by the other corporators, might be necessary to pay its debts.

7. That the trustee for credit as had released several stockholders from liability under the decree, does not release the defendant, unless such action increased his own liability.

8. Fraud practiced upon the stockholder to procure his subscription to stock did not effect to corporation's creditors.

9. It having been admitted by the defendant that he subscribed to fifteen shares of stock in the National Express company, and it having been proved that that company, and it having been proved that that company and the National Express and Transportation company were one and the same, the books of the corporation were admissible in evidence to show any transaction which had taken place between it and the defendant. 95-

How to Grow Beautiful.

How to Grow Beautiful.

She knew it was nocessary to become beautiful in order to be considered attractive, and so she made the art of beautifying a study. She felt it wiser to be plump and hearty than to be thin and delicate. To this end she knew good health was essential. She had suffered from backackes, sideaches, and bearing down pains, and was restless until she found the medicine she needed. It improved her appetite and digestion. Her habits became regular. Her flesh increased and became more firm and solid. Her complexion became clear and beautiful and free from pimples. Her lips grew red and her cheeks grew rosy. She did not know an ache or a pain. Exercise gave her pleasure and she became the life of her companions. She could ride a tricycle for many miles and never seem to grow weary. Her laughter was catching and all the young men loved her. She is now a happy wife and mother. Who was she? What was her name? Well, no matter, let us know the medicine she used. With pleasure, sweet girls. She used Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla. If any there be among you who are sickly, go quickly and do likewise.—Mansfield Independent.

To Young Wives.

A disappointed bachelor has said that some time after marriage a man's wife ceases to be supremely attractive to him. Never was a greater libel. Beauty preserved and grace re-tained can never lose their charm or yield their empire. The preservation of our bodies in their original healthy perfection and comliness is a sacred duty. Every young mother who will faithfully carry out the directions given with each bottle of "Mother's Friend" will never lose figure or complexion. The dainty bud will mature into the blooming rose, and old age will find her blessing the day she firs used "Mother's Friend." Sold by all drag-

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The stock market today showed more genuine strength and acted more like a real bull market than it has at any time within the past six months, dealings extending to a greater number of stocks than on any one day in the history of the exchange, yet transactions aggregated only 236,322 shares of listed stocks and 70,382 of unlisted. There was undoubtedly a large mber of stocks than on any one day increase in outside buying orders and dealings, although aggregating a comparatively small amount were very large in number. The market seems to have cut completely loose from the stocks in the fighting roads and the disposition is to let Rock Island, Missouri River and others remain dull and steady. There was less at-tention paid to the silver question though letters of the secretary obtained favorable comment. The temper of the room this morning was most cheerful and in marked contrast to that of the last few weeks and brokers did more legitimate business than in six months. Commission houses were large buyers all over the list and while there as considerable realizing, especially in the last our when the pressure to sell caused a partial setback, brokers identified with leading bears, were bidders for stocks and covering of shorts was freely indulged. The increase in commission charges upon stocks of the unlisted department does not seem to have had the effect expected, and sugar refineries again occupied the most comanding position in the market, and inside inter ests were apparently heavy buyers with the effect of advancing the stock sharply. Boston parties were active in Atchison and Union Pacific, although neither of those stocks was particularly prominent in the dealings. Chicago gas showed indications of realizing by the Chicago party in the early dealings, but became stronger late in the day. Pacifi: Mail gwas still strong on buying for Central, and coal stocks were active and strong, being advanced by the pools. Spe-cialties made only material advances for the day, however, as movements in more active stocks were slow and steady, and at the close amounted to fractional amounts only. The bull interest in the market, owing to the infusion of new blood, is evidently increasing, but there is feeling that there must come reaction in the next few days befere an upward movement makes any further material progress.

The close was firm and active at something under the best figures as a rule. There was only one arked recede, Manhattan closing one per cent. To the grand total sugar furnished 58,756 and Chi-cago gas 22,700. Exchange quiet and steady at 486@488.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

NEW YORK, April 21—Futures opened at a smart advance, touching the highest figures of the seaton, but at 11.86 for July a decline set in, and most of the early advance was lost. This reaction was due to a reduction in the quotation for silver and some disquietude caused by cable advices respecting labor troubles in middle Europe. Some of the beals unloaded, and some of the bears plucked up courage to put out moderate lines of shorts. August, was the most active month. The next crop was somewhat neglected. The weather was fairly favorable to crop prospects. Some of the southern spot markets were dearer, and there was quite a flurry in futures at New Orleans. The Sun's Cotton Review.
